98/92 #3	L-R: Neil Campbell, Beverly Campbell (Zielke), Robert Campbell Jr. with Robert Campbell, Sr., posed in front of a truck - taken in North Vancouver. Dad bought a war assets three ton truck, built a "camper" on the back, complete with beds, a table, coleman stove and camping equipment and we drove the Alaska Highway in 1947. We were one of the first civilian vehicles traveling the road, and were required to have a 45 gallon drum of gasoline attached to the truck. We also were asked to report to the RCMP every 300 miles to let them know we had made that leg of the road safely. The trip to Vancouver took seven days because the Alaska Highway connected to the "Big Bend" Highway through Peace River. It was a memorable journey.
