Baggage can be checked through to Dawson via the White Pass & Yukon Route without undergoing inspection by the Customs Officers at Skaguay, making it very convenient for all who travel via that line, because, during the season of navigation when baggage is once checked at a starting point, passengers are not required to be on hand at Skaguay or any other point en route for inspection of their baggage, which takes place at destination. Baggage originating in United States territory destined to Lower Yukon River points in Alaska, will go through to destination in bond as heretofore, without inspection. Baggage can be checked through from all British Columbia and Puget Sound points.

Double first-class trains daily, except Sunday, between Skaguay (Alaska) and Yukon Route to destination. Goods may be bonded through Yukon Territory to Alaska points on Lower Yukon River; also, through Alaska, via Skaguay, from British Columbia to Yukon Territory and vice versa, without payment of duty.

The Bishop Scott Academy

Founded in 1870.

PORTLAND, OR.

Is the best place on the Pacific Coast to educate your son. It is a Home School for Boys, where there is Military and Manual Training. A faculty of twelve competent teachers conduct the school under the direction of Arthur C. Newill, principal, late of Oxford University, England. The members of the faculty understand boys, and enter personally into their sports and recreation. The Academy numbers among its graduates many prominent citizens of the Pacific Northwest. It stands at the head of the educational institutions of this section. Students may enter as boarders or as day scholars. The buildings have been entirely renovated this year and the most complete preparations have been made for the instruction, comfort and happiness of the scholars. Hill Military Academy is the finest Private Boarding &
Day School for Boys in the Pacific Northwest . . .*

I

IT IS a conspicuous building overlooking the city and surrounding country—a noble monument to the perseverance and energy of Dr. J. W. Hill, the sole owner and proprietor of the school. For twenty-three years Dr. Hill was lessee and principal of the Bishop Scott Academy in Portland. Now he has built his own school on a scale that merits attention. The site, building, environment, curriculum, general conditions, social position and phenomenal success of the Hill Military Academy make up an extraordinary record. Dr. Hill has embodied in his own complete school the fruits of his long experience as a teacher of boys. The commodious Academy is fitted with every convenience and comfort that ingenuity could devise and is situated on the outskirts of the finest part of the city, commanding a superb view of the river, the hills and Portland entire, convenient for boarders and day scholars alike.

The school aims to fit boys for college and its graduates are admitted upon Dr. Hill's certificate into the University of Oregon and Leland Stanford University, of California.

The school is non-sectarian and free from any religious control. Devotional exercises are held each day, however, and every effort is made to train the moral instincts of the boys in the right way. Military instruction is, of course, obligatory upon the pupils.

Tuition fees are $400 per annum for boarding pupils, and from $40 to $80 per annum, according to the classes, for day scholars.

The house is fire-proof, and thoroughly equipped throughout with all the modern conveniences in vogue at the present time in hotels: (as the instantaneous combination hot and cold running water wash stands), electric lights and electric return call bells in all rooms, separate bath rooms and baths with suites, inside and outside fire escapes, electric and dumb elevators, steam heat, etc.

THIS ESTABLISHED HOUSE is finely located in the very heart-center of business and hotel portion of the city, in close proximity to all the leading banks, business houses, depots, art galleries and places of amusement.

THE TABLE—We are noted for the excellence of the table we set. Our dining room has one of the finest interiors of any hotel dining room in the state. Our service throughout is first-class.

The Industrial, Commercial and Shipping City of Puget Sound

Alaska has made many men rich, and much of this Northern made money has been invested in business and realty in the solid, growing cities of Puget Sound. None of these investments have brought better returns than those made in Everett, the "City of Smokestacks." Without doubt this is the greatest young city in the West, and every returning Alaskan is invited to visit the city before locating elsewhere.

Her name "City of Smokestacks" is derived from the fact that she is primarily an industrial city. Eleven years ago there was good bear hunting where the city now stands, and a city was not thought of until it became certain that the Great Northern Railway would first reach salt water and a good ocean harbor at this point, after the long transcontinental haul. Then, on account of the time and distance saved, Everett was selected as the Pacific coast freight terminus of that great system. Since the beginning of the work of building these terminals, in the summer of 1901, machine shops, a round house, coal bunkers and a large freight house have been built; 36 miles of tracks of the 75 miles planned have been laid; an immense tunnel under the city has been bored; and a fine passenger station has been started.

But the Great Northern has not been alone in securing terminals in Everett. In 1900 the Northern Pacific purchased the extensive local holdings of the Monte Cristo road, and has since greatly improved the same. The Monte Cristo still retains permanent trackage privileges into the city and the Canadian Pacific reaches the city on the same terms.

The accompanying map of the state shows the superb location of the city, for nature has favored Everett greatly. She is situated almost directly opposite the Straits of Juan de Fuca, at a point nearer the East and nearer the markets of the Orient, than any other city in the United States. Three rivers like the spokes to a hub empty their waters into Puget Sound nearer Everett than to any other practical milling point, rendering 20,000,000,000 feet of Washington's finest timber, directly tributary by water and by short rail haul. This, and the liberal policy of the city in offering free sites to all legitimate manufacturing concerns, accounts for there being more lumber and shingles cut here than in any other town on the Pacific coast.

There are 2,835 men employed in the industries, who draw $2,167,212.00 a year in wages. In addition to the nine saw mills and the thirteen shingle mills, there is a mammoth paper mill, a smelter, an arsenic plant, flour mills, sash and door factories, foundaries and machine shops, ship yards, a creosoting works, and numerous smaller plants.

Then Snohomish county, of which Everett is the county seat, is one the best agricultural counties, and without question is the best mining county in the state. The mineral belt is in the Cascade range, and carries gold, silver, copper and lead; and the ore is low grade for the most part. Most of the paying mines of the country are of a similar character, but the true test of the situation is that there are double the shipping mines in this country than in any other two counties in the state.

The U. S. Government has a $3,000,000 jetty under construction at the mouth of the Snohomish river, north of the city; and in conjunction with this, the Great Northern Ry. interests are in readiness to construct wharves on a half-mile of their holdings on Everett Bay. On account of the immense saving in time, and consequently in money, there is no kind of question but what Pres. James J. Hill's big Oriental steamers will load and discharge cargo at this point.

A final word about Everett as a city to live in: It is a modern city in every respect, having grown from a forest in 1891 to a busy manufacturing city of 16,000 population in 1902.

After reading this article you are invited to visit the city and investigate for yourself, and you are also informed that any inquiries that you may wish to make will be given prompt attention by the Everett Chamber of Commerce.

The above cut represents the almost perfect townsite of the city of Everett. The peninsula is four miles long and a mile and one-half broad, with the Snohomish river on one side and Puget Sound on the other. The United States government is now building a $3,000,000 fresh water harbor at the mouth of the river; and along the entire water front are sites which the city gives free to all legitimate manufacturing concerns.

Gazetteer of Alaska

A few years ago it could have been appropriately said that little or nothing was known of Alaska. The discovery of gold in the Klondike in 1896, however, riveted the eyes of the world on the far north, and today there are few who do not know that Alaska has been justly called "the treasure house of the world." It had been known as a wild, far-away region of perpetual ice and snow, six months nights, midnight suns, the home of the aurora borealis, the polar bear, Eskimo dog, seal-skin sacs and whale blubber; where hordes of fur-clad semi-savages delved for gold in ever-frozen mire at the foot of the North Pole, with candles at a dollar apiece and whisky at fifty cents a drink. Those who thought of it—if any one thought of it at all—as a realm of endless winter, gloom and frigid desolation, a sort of cross between eternal hell and everlasting icebergs.

It is an awakening to learn now, since its development began, that the summer suns are warm, that nature is prodigal in vegetation—indeed almost tropical—that the winters, though cold, are pleasant, dry and invigorating, where one may work out of doors in shirt sleeves in a below-zero temperature; that the small fruits grow in the most bountiful profusion in a wild state; that the root vegetables attain on cultivation, a mammoth size; that the cereals are grown in the short, warm summers as satisfactorily as in Minnesota or Illinois; that there are grand forests of colossal trees, fine in quality, almost equal to the hard woods of the south; that the streams are full of the finest flavored fish of infinite variety; and last of all that there are many thousands of people who live there from pleasure and who hope to rear their children there, surrounded by the comforts and luxuries of the older civilizations, schools, churches, clubs, societies and a social circle equal to the best in any land.

The vast and still almost unknown sub-arctic empire that we now call Alaska, was discovered in 1729, by Vitus Bering, a Danish navigator and scientist, who was roaming unexplored oceans under a commission from Peter the Great of Russia. Twelve years later, in 1741, Bering sailed as far east as Kayak island, sighted and named Mount Saint Elias, had a number of his men killed and probably eaten by Indians on what we know as Cook's Inlet, and was afterward shipwrecked and was buried on Bering's island, just east of the Peninsula of Kamchatka, in Bering Sea. The mighty region he had found was laid down on the maps as Russian-America until 1867, when, under William H. Seward's administration of the State Department, it was bought by the United States for $7,200,000.

Ben Butler proclaimed himself "in favor of giving Russia the money to keep her frozen desert." E. B. Washburne, one of Grant's closest associates, declared that no part of it could ever be inhabited by white men. A then distinguished, but long since extinguished, New York congressman, pronounced it "a wretched, God-forsaken realm of eternal winter, fit only for polar bears and Eskimo dogs." And all the "eminent journalists" of the day vied with each other in the patriotic virulence with which they lambasted "the crazy deal in icebergs and volcanoes." In the light of thirty-five years' experience what are all their wiseacre opinions and prognostications worth today? About as much as the elaborate misinformation and profound unwisdom of their successors of today, will bring in the intellectual markets of a generation to come.

The name of Alaska was suggested by Charles Sumner, one of the last notable men produced by New England. It is an abbreviation or euphonization of the Indian word, Alak-shak or Al-ay-ek-sa, which means "Great Country"—and never was phrase better fitted to fact. In vastness of extent, variety and sublimity of scenery, present riches and future possibilities, it is incomputably the greatest territory that has ever been brought under the floppings of the star-spangled gridiron since the "old Virginia rebel slaveholder," Thomas Jefferson euchred Colonel Napoleon out of Louisiana—which included nearly everything in sight from the Mississippi River to the Pacific Ocean—in 1803.

Alaska stretches from 54 deg. 40 min. to 71 deg. 23 min. 33 sec. north latitude, and from about 130 deg. to 187 deg. 30 min. west longitude; or through nearly seventeen degrees of latitude, and fifty-seven and a half degrees of longitude—six latitudinal degrees farther than from Washington City to San Diego; that is, it measures about 1,131 statute miles from north to south; and, taking thirty-five miles as a degree of longitude on the fifty-fifth parallel of latitude, 3,981 miles from east to west—or 1,000 miles more than the distance from San Francisco to New York, and considerably farther than from Chicago to Paris. Its westernmost point, Cape Wrangel on Attu Island, is eight degrees and thirty-six minutes farther west of San Francisco, than that city is west of Westport, Maine; putting the California metropolis four degrees and eighteen minutes—or, in that latitude, 210 miles—east of the rightful geographical center of the United States. It extends twenty-one degrees and thirty minutes west of the eastern end of Siberia in Asia; and twenty-nine degrees and thirty-five minutes west of Honolulu—or, counting fifty-six miles to a longitudinal degree in the Hawaiian latitude, 1,657 miles west of the capital of the Cannibal Islands. In brief it reaches east and west nearly one-sixth of the entire circumference of the globe, and it has a coast line of more than 26,000 miles—or enough to put a belt around the earth and lap over 1,000 miles.

All surveys so far of this vast subdivision of the republic have been little more than guesses; but, according to the most reliable estimates, Alaska, with its outlying islands, has an area of 617,703 square miles, or 395,329,920 acres—nearly equal to all the United States from the Mississippi River to the Atlantic Ocean and from the St. Lawrence River to the Gulf of Mexico. It would make 73 such states as Massachusetts, and 494 like Rhode Island.

Alaska—"Great Country," indeed. It is greater in domain than the combined empires of Germany and Austria-Hungary, with all of France thrown in. It contains the loftiest mountains in the United States, and the grandest glaciers on the globe. It has the greatest seal and salmon fisheries in the world, and halibut, cod and herring fisheries whose capabilities seem limited only by the demand for their products. It has the greatest quartz gold mine, with possibly one exception, in America, and hundreds of thousands of square miles of unprospected mineral fields that give every promise for its future, as one of the greatest bonanza lands—if not the greatest one—in all mining history.

Its great river, the Yukon, is in many respects second only to the Amazon among the rivers of the new world. It is navigable for large steamers, as one unbroken flood, 1,965 miles from its mouth, to where the Lewis and Pelly rivers unite to form it,—or farther than from New Orleans to St.

Paul, and more than twice as far as from New Orleans to Chicago—and it is navigable for light-draft boats hundreds of miles farther up each of these arms, and others like the Hootalinqua, Stewart, Porcupine and Big Salmon. At its mouth, it is about 60 miles wide. From 100 to 150 miles above its mouth, it is so wide that a person standing on one of its banks cannot see the other. It drains an empire of more than 1,000,000 square miles, and it discharges more water into Bering's Sea, than the Mississippi does into the Gulf of Mexico.

NATURAL RESOURCES.

AGRICULTURE. — The agricultural possibilities of Alaska are unbounded. There are millions of acres of land in this great unknown possession of ours susceptible of cultivation and upon which varied crops may be raised. There are inland valleys of rich alluvial soil, upon which wild grasses grow higher than a horse's back. There are miles upon miles of level prairies upon which cattle may graze the year around. These facts, which are just becoming known, and it might be said are still discredited by the great majority of people, are destined to revolutionize the present mode of living in Alaska and create a new empire for Uncle Sam's peopled by millions.

NATIVES IN ALASKA.

The natives of Alaska may properly be divided into three classes, according to their locality, habits and ethnological appearance. They are the Southeastern coast natives, those of the interior—along the Yukon and its tributaries—and the Simon pure Eskimo of the Bering and Arctic countries. The Aleut may be added as a distinct and fourth class, though he seems so certainly to be a mixture of the Eskimo and the Asiatic Tartar, he may be considered with the Eskimo.

In all the northern natives there are certain characteristics that are common to all the aborigines of the new world—his nearness to nature, his improvidence in matters that the white man regards highly, and his patience under affliction.

To the unprejudiced, the northern native seems to be as peace-loving a mortal as one would care to know. It is true that in the old days, he sometimes rebelled against the encroachments of the Russians, but it will not be difficult for those who are acquainted with the Russian character to imagine that sometimes the native was not wholly to blame; that there are exceptions to this rule of peacefulness goes without saying, but the northern native is after all a human being, as he is sometimes as weak morally as his white brother.

When the white man first landed on Alaska shores, they found the natives living regular, frugal, but well ordered lives. They had plenty of those things regarded by them as desirable—fish and game for food, the furs of animals for clothing, and shelter against the winter's storm, and against the summer's sun. Since the advent of the white man, they have become very thoroughly disorganized in every way. Being human, they have imbibed the vices of the new comers without very materially borrowing his few virtues. Having got a taste of his more highly palatable foods and drinks, he has lost some of the taste for his own. Finding among the white man a ready sale in trade for his wares in the summer time he has rather neglected to provide for the winter, and it is a hard lesson for him to learn that while the white man has a most kindly feeling for him in the summer or busy season, when he can be of service, this feeling is pretty well frozen up by the long, hard winter, when he hungers for some of the white man's bountiful store.

The southeastern natives took more readily to the white man's ways, and when the great rush of 1897 came, they made a great deal of money packing and guiding for the gold seekers. As a rule they work pretty constantly at the settlements, in the various fish canneries, and even about the mines, and the results of their hunting and fishing brings them better returns than elsewhere in the country. They are rather more provident than the other natives too, so as a rule they have comfortable homes, their children are well clothed and well fed, and most of them go to the schools provided by the government.

The Eskimos are rapidly disappearing—even more rapidly than the other natives. They are certainly the most peaceable of all the natives, more helpless and less self-assertive. They have no resources except those learned by the habits of ages, hence when the white men drive off the walrus, kill the seal and deplete their game, they simply hang about the settlements and starve.

The natives of the interior have all the unfortunate characteristics of their coast neighbors, and are, in addition, very lazy, and except under the most urgent provocation will not work. Hence they are the most degraded, starved and altogether unlovable people on earth. Their constantly starved condition, added to the extremes of their climate working together has attacked their health as a class and they are nearly always sick.

But with all their faults and misfortunes, the white men would do well to learn some of their virtues. They are beyond all patient under affliction. They are loyal to their friends. They never forget a kindness, or neglect an opportunity to repay it. They are truthful as children, and refuse to answer an impertinent or undesirable question rather than lie out of it. They are all hospitable to the point of their last crumb, and no inconvenience or privation is too great when it involves the well being of the stranger among them.

They all have some habits in common. They all employ the inevitable canoe in the summer, and the ubiquitous dog in the winter. They use furs for clothing, and fish is their staff of life. They employ the same methods of hunting and fishing and trapping, and the language of all has the same general tendencies, though there are perhaps as many dialects as there are tribes.

At present they have no real and recognized chiefs, but there are acknowledged leaders of tribes to which they give the name of chiefs, though the title is usually a self-assumed one.

It is now almost generally agreed that the northern natives are originally from the mainland of Asia, changed in some particulars by their present environments.

ALASKA AND FINLAND COMPARED.

Finland has an area of 144,221 square miles. Its southern boundary is in latitude 60; northern boundary, latitude 70; Alaska, southern boundary is 54.30; northern boundary, 70. Latitude 60, the southern boundary of Finland, runs across Cook's Inlet and the coast of the northernmost bend in the Gulf of Alaska, leaving all of the southeastern portion of Alaska and all of the peninsula of Alaska to the southward.

Finland, with a soil not nearly so rich and with a climate no better, and indeed colder, produces yearly 300,000 horses, about 3,000,000 cattle and 1,000,000 sheep; to say nothing of 200,000 head of hogs and an immense number of chickens and ducks.

Finland also produces wheat, barley, flax, oats, rye, hemp, buckwheat and peas in large amounts, exporting millions of bushels of grains and cereals. Finland exported in five years over 20,000 horses, about 60,000 cows and calves, and the same number of hogs. During the same period she exported 133,743,216 pounds of butter, and 1,972,185 pounds of cheese.

The United States government has established experimental agricultural stations at Sitka and Kenai, on the Kenai Peninsula, and has raised grain and vegetables in both places with marked success.

Potatoes, cabbage, turnips and all hardy vegetables are now successfully raised all over Alaska, and in the southeastern portion these vegetables reach a size seldom seen elsewhere.

So far as agriculture has been tried in a systematic manner in Alaska it has been a success. The department of agriculture matured no less than eleven varieties of wheat and about a dozen varieties each of barley and oats, as well as flax and buckwheat, and also produced all of the common vegetables. There are large and successful market gardens at Dawson, north of latitude of 64 degrees. Barley has been ripened at Fort Yukon in latitude about 66 degrees and volunteer wheat has been found ripe at places on the Yukon, where it has been accidentally scattered.

TIMBER.

The forests of Alaska are among the most extensive in the new world as to area, and among the finest in any country as to quality, though the varieties are not many. Spruce, pine, white, red and yellow cedar, hemlock, fir, and cottonwood are the principal woods, though elm, poplar, maple, beech and tamarac are found in some localities. The trees range in size from cedars eight feet in diameter in Southeastern Alaska, to the small growth spruce and fir of a foot in diameter in the northernmost localities.

There is no finer wood than the yellow and red cedar of Southeastern Alaska. For house building and interior fitting, it is capable of a polish not inferior to the hard wood hickory and oak of the States, and the firs and spruce are large, free from defects, and of great tensile strength and durability. Boat building is carried on at various points, coast and inland, the material being exclusively of Alaska growth. On the Yukon river, there is abundant wood for all purposes, including fuel to last for many years to come.

FISHERIES.

By far the most presently profitable industry of Alaska is its salmon fisheries. Hundreds of thousands of cases of canned salmon are prepared and shipped annually, and thousands of tons of halibut were marketed last year in Seattle alone, as the catch of Southeastern Alaska. Since it became an industry, the fish of Alaska have yielded more than $8,000,000, and the supply is only limited by the market for the product.

The inland rivers of Alaska and some of the lakes are visited by the salmon during the spawning season and the natives practically live upon their catch of this fish. But all the waters of the country are literally alive with fish, salmon trout, white fish, pickerel and brook and mountain trout, being those chiefly found, with a so-called "sucker" weighing approximately a pound, as the chief food for the work dogs.

There is no time of the year when the natives cannot catch fish when they are required, though they will often suffer intensely from starvation before they will go through the ice for them, as the method of catching them subjects one to a good deal of hardship, and an occasional freezing. They begin by cutting a hole through the ice, sometimes having to go five or six feet or even further. They then wait until night, and, using a torch, they spear their game as they peep up at the hole to satisfy their curiosity. White men who know the country and its ways rely implicitly at all times of the year on the fish as an article of food.

COAL.

Alaska, indeed the whole country is underlaid with beds of a new but very good quality of coal. There is no region where coal is in demand, where it has not been found. For many years, indeed going back to the Russian occupation, the sea vessels reported coal along the coast, and since the days of steamships vessels have been fueled at several points, notably at Point Barrow.

At White Horse, the terminus of the White Pass road, fine coal beds have been uncovered and are being now developed for use on the road. The transportation companies have coal deposits on the lower Yukon, from which to fuel their river boats, the principal of these beds being the one above Grayling on the lower river, one above Eagle and that largest of all on Cliff creek, four miles below Forty-Mile. There is another well developed bed on Rock creek, a tributary of the Klondike, about twenty miles above Dawson. All the way up the Yukon and its branches coal has been found, but there being as yet no considerable market for the product, no development work has been done.

In quality, the coal is new, geologically, somewhat lacking in the petroleum products, but rich in the hydrocarbons and those other gases which stand for high temperature in consumption. There is little sulphur in it, hence it is a good blacksmithing coal. These facts apply equally to all the coal in the country.

PETROLEUM.

Cape Douglas, on the southeastern coast of Alaska, is the headquarters for the Coal Oil Bay country. At several points in this section large syndicates, have begun operations to bore for oil and much work has already been done and many thousands of dollars are available for further exploration. Near Yakutat, in the Copper River country, in the summer of 1898, a lake was discovered upon which a layer of two feet or more of crude petroleum floated. The prospectors reported the find of "a lake of oil." It appears that the oil had seeped through the earth by way of some crevasses and in the course of time this great mass of oil had accumulated. In places it was so hard that a man could safely walk upon it. There are excellent indications of oil in many places in Alaska.

PELTS, FURS AND GAME.

Before Alaska was known to have any other source of wealth the furs of land and sea animals caught and dried by the natives, sustained a large and profitable trade between the interior natives and the Hudson Bay Company, which had stations at several points and between the coast natives and the Russian-American company, which was chartered by the Russian government in a manner similar to the British charter of the Hudson Bay Company. After the American succession, the above corporations gave way to so-called American companies, and in that new form the industry goes on at the present time, but with less importance than formerly excepting in the case of the sealing industry, over which Great Britain, Russia and the United States have so signally failed to agree.

In the earlier days the chief and most valuable furs were the sea otter and seal. The latter are still very valuable, and the supply is rapidly diminishing, as the sealers have been allowed to kill indiscriminately. Of late, some stringent international laws have gone into effect, that may have the effect of preserving that valuable animal. About $15 is the average price brought by newly dried prime skins, the difference between that amount, and the price of "my lady's" seal skin sacque being absorbed in the treatment, plucking and dying of the skin.

The sea otter is rapidly disappearing from the waters of the earth—Alaska as well as elsewhere. Formerly the Aleut Indians grew rich, and wore fine clothes by virtue of their earnings during the sea otter season. Thousands of the skins were procured annually and each brought an average of $50 to the natives. Now only a few skins are taken annually, and it has ceased to be an industry, though the fortunate catcher of a prime skin easily secures from $150 to $300 for it.

All the large commercial companies doing business in Alaska still trade in skins of all kinds, though the industry is only incidental now to other and more important matters. The principal skins traded in are bear, black, cinnamon and grizzly, and the famous and huge Kadiak bear; fox, white or arctic, the beautiful cross fox, the black fox, silver, red and blue. The most plentiful, and the least valuable are the red fox, whose skin brings $5.00; the white or arctic fox, the value of which is from $6.00 to $10.00; and the cross fox, supposed to be a cross between the red and black, the value of which is $15.00 to $30.00, according to the markings. The blue, silver and black fox are very scarce now and their presence in many sections is reduced to mere legend. Of late, one or two companies here begun fox farming on a large scale, by virtue of a law they had exacted of the 45th Congress. By this law the government is permitted to lease one or more islands to the companies for a term of years. The method of the companies is to stock such an island with blue or black fox—whichever it is determined to raise; and to place the island in the care of an Aleut family, whose business it is to see that the foxes are protected, and to catch sufficient fish in the summer to feed them during the winter. As the foxes multiply very rapidly and as the furs are very highly esteemed by the ladies, it is hoped the industry will prosper. Some question has recently arisen as to the validity of the leasing of these so-called fox islands, and the dispute may possibly retard the industry for a time.

Another valuable fur bearing animal of Alaska is the martin, whose skin for many years was the unit of value in the country, being placed at one dollar—or rather, a dollar was equivalent to “one skin.” Beaver were formerly plenty, but are now almost extinct. There are many wolves in that country, and are of three species, the large timber or gray wolf, the Russian or black wolf, and the ubiquitous coyote, the first cousin and worthy kinsman to the husky dog. The two large varieties are not plentiful and are such cowards, and withal such sly rogues that they are rarely taken. Most of the so-called wolf robes are either coyote skins or those of the husky dog. It may be said here without fear of contradiction that no adult in Alaska was ever attacked by a wolf or by a pack. They rarely run in larger droves than three or at most four, and oftener prowl alone. Moreover, both foxes and wolves have so much food in the shape of the Arctic rabbit, that they are rarely hungry. By the way, the most numerous of all Arctic animals, mosquitoes and squirrels excepted, are these same Arctic rabbits, large, gray in summer and snow white in winter time. There are literally millions of them in some sections, though at times they seem to disappear for several years, only to reappear again in still greater numbers. The fur, in season, is of the finest, being wonderfully light and warm, closely resembling eider down. However, it is not of great use, being too frail for service. The Russian government has offered a reward of $100,000 for an invention by which these skins may be properly tanned. These rabbits are good to eat, and in winter are easily caught, either shot, or in traps or snares. They are not popular with the natives, who make no use of the skins, and are not fond of the meat. Squirrels and chipmunks are also plentiful, also the “whistling marmot," a little animal closely resembling and whose habits are identical with the prairie dog of the States.

DEER.

Moose and caribou, of the deer family, inhabit the mainland, and the ordinary red deer lives upon the islands of Southeastern Alaska. The moose have largely moved back into the mountains fastnesses since the country was invaded by the white people, though hundreds are killed annually at the present time. In one special direction at least this animal is the gamest of all big game, in that it is the subtlest of all and being big and strong can get away when almost any other animal would succumb. The moose has one most careful habit, which serves him well to elude his pursuers. He will never lie down to rest or go to grazing until he has doubled back for a distance on his track, and in feeding or sleeping will stay near enough to mark the approach of a pursuer on his track. Hunters are always obliged to count on this habit.

Caribou still roam in herds of many thousands during the fall and winter months, feeding on the white moss of the mountain districts. They are excellent food, and their skin is the most highly prized trophy of the native hunter. They are easily approached, and are consequently not difficult to take.

REINDEER.

The reindeer is to the Northern Alaska Eskimo what the husky dog is to his neighbor of the interior, and unless the government's benevolent aim misses in the firing, in a very few years the now helpless natives will have a servant and companion that will be far more to them than the husky dog could ever be, for while the latter can only help the native in his work, the former can not only do that, but furnish him with milk for food while living, but in dying will give him meat for food, and the best of all furs for clothing. There are now approximately 4112 reindeer on the northern coast of Alaska, with five stations, the principal one being the Teller reindeer station, on the north coast of Port Clarence. The other stations are within a few leagues of this one. The government is still importing reindeer into the country from Siberia.

FOWL.

The whole of the Alaska peninsula is alive with ptarmigan and grouse, and at certain seasons the waters are covered by millions of geese and ducks, grouse and ptarmigan, where they have not been pursued much, are very tame, and it is no trick to kill them with stones and clubs. Geese are killed at longer range, and are rather shy. Ducks are excellent eating until they begin nesting, and about that time, too, they begin feeding on fish, and the flesh is then more to the native taste than to that of the white man. If all the egg dessicating concerns in the country were located on the lower Yukon in June and July, they could have literally all the eggs they wanted for the gathering.

APICULTURE.

Father Methodius, priest of the Greco-Russian Church, Sitka, Alaska, has written to Governor Brady an interesting account of his experiences in bee-keeping in Alaska. He started in with two hives of bees brought from Seattle, and found that they prospered well, making about forty pounds of honey to the hive the first year.

TELEGRAPHS.

The act making appropriation for the support of the regular and volunteer army for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1901, approved May 26, 1900, contained a paragraph making appropriation of $450,550, for military telegraphs and cables. St. Michael and Nome are already connected by a submarine cable 132 miles in length, and St. Michael and Unalaska are connected by a similar cable. At Unalaklek the line starts east across country to the Yukon, and then up the north bank until about the neighborhood of Rampart. From this point it takes a detour to the south in order to avoid the Yukon flats. By early summer it will be completed to Eagle City and the boundary line, where connection can be made with the Canadian system. The Eagle and Valdez line will be completed about the same time.

REVENUE CUTTER SERVICE.

The cutters Bear, Thetis, Rush, Manning and Grant were all in Alaska waters last season. The Bear is built for rough service and she has plenty of it.

The cutter service from the first has been helpful to Alaska, and such assistance has been rendered cheerfully. The time has come when a vessel should be kept in Southeast Alaska throughout the year.

SURVEYING THE PUBLIC LAND.

The United States Surveyor General for the district of Alaska has forwarded a report to the governor containing an estimate of the cost of surveying the public land.

He calls attention to the fact that although the revenues of the United States have been increased by nearly $150,000,000, and that although its area exceeds the area of the thirteen original states of the Union, not an acre has ever been surveyed at the expense of the United States or under the system of public land surveys in force in all other parts of the Union.

He also calls attention to the fact that not even meridian or base lines have been established to govern surveys in the district, which of course are essential before township or subdivision lines can be projected. The Surveyor General estimates the cost of establishing these lines at $103,872, and Governor Brady recommends that this amount be allowed for the purpose.

GEOLOGICAL SURVEY.

Mr. Charles D. Walcott, the Director of this office, has laid out comprehensive plans for this work, and much has already been accomplished. There are several parties at work now in the field.

Their reports throw much light upon the mineral resources, and those who are interested in this subject will do well to read closely the various reports of this office.

MAGNETIC OBSERVATORY.

The United States Coast and Geodetic Survey completed, during the month of October, the construction of two magnetic observatory buildings at Sitka. They are situated on a knoll on a piece of land adjacent to the Russian cemetery. The site was chosen with reference to freedom from all present and future disturbances and abnormalities of a magnetic nature, which might be due to character of ground, to masses of iron, factories, or electrical plates.

The purpose of the observatories is to furnish a base or reference station for all magnetic work done in Alaska and to carry on a series of uninterrupted observations by automatic photographic methods, in connection with similar observations of other observatories established elsewhere, and observations undertaken by exploring parties in the polar regions.

The larger of the two buildings is the variation observatory. This consists essentially of a small room in which the instruments are placed, surrounded and inclosed by the main system of walls, an air passage of a couple of feet separating the walls and ceilings of the inner and outer structures. All walls, ceilings and floors are doubled and filled in with a wide packing of sawdust and have an elaborate system of ventilation. By this means it is hoped to maintain in the observing room a constant uniform temperature and to exclude moisture. Instruments of the most recent and delicate character have been furnished for the work. By them will be kept a constant photographic record of the various elements of the magnetic force, showing the variations in horizontal and vertical direction and intensity.

The smaller or absolute observatory will be used in connection with the variation observatory to obtain at fixed moments of time the exact amount of variation and intensity for the reduction of the photographic records of the main observatory. It will be used also for testing instruments and for special observations of various scientific and practical nature. The causes and modifying influences of the magnetic force will be studied. The general and special distribution of the magnetic force in Alaska will be studied, and will be of great benefit to the mariner and surveyor.

Dr. Lewis Bauer, chief of the magnetic division of the Coast and Geodetic Survey, was here last year, and planned for this important undertaking. He left an observer, who recorded observations throughout the year. Dr. Harry W. Edmonds is now in charge of this delicate work.

COAST AND GEODETIC SURVEY.

Notice should be taken of the work which is in progress on the Patterson and the Gedney. They have been at work during the summer and early fall in Cross Sound and Icy Straits, and will doubtless finish that area before they start south for the winter.

Trade and commerce have been extending so rapidly that need is felt for accurate charts in many places, such as Prince William Sound, Cordova Bay, and the west coast of Prince of Wales.

MARINE HOSPITAL SERVICE.

A Marine Hospital Station has been established at Dutch Harbor under command of Dr. Dunlap Moore. There is a well fitted hospital there with sufficient number of beds and all necessary appliances.

There is also a branch of this service at Juneau in charge of Dr. Leonhardt.

ALASKA NATIONAL GUARD.

There is a movement on foot to organize a National Guard for Alaska. This is permissible under the civil government bill approved June 6, 1900. It is quite probable that a company will be formed in Skagway and also in Juneau and Nome.

NAVY.

This department has been represented during the past year by the U. S. S. Concord, cruising in Bering Sea and in the Gulf of Alaska to Sitka. Japonsky Island, in Sitka Harbor, is the naval reservation for Alaska. It is well located for that purpose and has a shell house and magazine.

ARMY.

On the 19th of January, 1901, the Secretary of War, under General Orders No. 8, separated Alaska from the Department of the Columbia and created it into the Military Department of Alaska. Colonel (since General) George M. Randall, was assigned to be the commander, with headquarters at St. Michael. Posts have been located at Skagway, Fort Egbert (Eagle City), Fort Gibbon, St. Michael, Nome and Valdez. A tremendous amount of work has been done in transportation and in building everything upon new foundations.

The locations have been well selected, and care has been taken to make the buildings as convenient and comfortable as possible. The headquarters have since been moved to Vancouver, Wash.

LICENSES AND FEES.

The United States Government collects large amounts annually for licenses and fees. Saloon license is from $500 to $1,500. Hotels pay $50 per year. Broker, $100, and all other classes of business are taxed. Mercantile houses pay according to the business they do, the big companies contributing $500 per year.

POSTOFFICE DEPARTMENT.

This department has done its best to accommodate the people, and the task has been a difficult one. The service during the past year has much improved and has been extended to the utmost limits. Mail has arrived regularly from Nome and Port Clarence. Demands for new routes and most frequent deliveries are sent to the department persistently and are acceded to whenever expedient.

LIGHT-HOUSE DISTRICT.

The first session of the Fifty-sixth Congress passed an appropriation of $100,000 "to enable the Secretary of the Treasury to establish, under the direction and supervision of the Light-House Board, light-house and fog-signal stations in Alaskan waters." The second session voted $200,000 for the same purposes. Contracts have been let for the erection of two light-houses, one on the middle island of the Five Fingers, in Stephens Passage, and the other upon Sentinel Island, in Lynn Canal. So far so good; but the whole business is a little like putting the cart before the horse. Alaska should be created into a new light-house district, furnished with suitable tender and all necessary appliances and an inspector, as in other districts. Then, as they are able to attend to the work, light-houses, fog signals, etc., can be properly built and constantly maintained. Anything short of this is simply miffing and poor public policy.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

The entire district of Alaska is allowed but $30,000 per year by the general government to maintain its public schools. Many communities are now totally neglected because the Commissioner of Education has not the means to establish a school and pay the salary of the teacher. The governor in all of his reports has asked for at least $60,000 as an annual appropriation, but has asked in vain.

Under the new incorporation law the larger towns that take advantage of its provisions will have ample funds for school purposes. Fifty per cent of the licenses collected in these municipalities will go to support the public schools.

CONGRESSIONAL DELEGATE.

It had been taken for granted that Alaska would be granted a delegate on a footing with the territories, but so far Congress has not taken action on this subject.

CENSUS.

The district of Alaska is divided into two parts, the Southern and Northern,
 The Southern containing .....33,023 persons
 The Northern containing .....20,408 persons 12,500 of the above being natives.

ALASKA MINING LAWS.

Lode Claims.

A lode location may contain an area of twenty and sixty six hundredths acres. It may be fifteen hundred feet in length and six hundred feet in width, but no more. The end lines of a location must be parallel. The location must be distinctly marked on the ground. The official survey of same is required to be identical with or within the lines of location. The price for a lode claim is $5.00 per acre.

Placer Claims.

Section 2329. Claims usually called "placers," including all forms of deposit, excepting veins of quartz, or other rock in place, shall be subject to entry and patent, under like circumstances and conditions, and upon similar proceedings, as are provided for vein or lode claims; but where the lands have been previously surveyed by the United States, the entry in its exterior limits shall conform to the legal sub-divisions of the public lands.

Section 2330. Legal sub-divisions of forty acres may be sub-divided into ten-acre tracts; and two or more persons, or associations of persons, having contiguous claims of any size, although such claims may be less than ten acres each, may take joint entry thereof; but no location of a placer claim, made after the ninth day of July, eighteen hundred and seventy, shall exceed one hundred and sixty acres for any person, or association of persons, which location shall conform to the United States surveys; and nothing in this section contained shall defeat or impair any bona fide pre-emption or homestead claims upon agricultural lands, or authorize the sale of improvements of any bona fide settler to any purchaser.

Section 2331. Where placer claims are upon surveyed lands, and conform to legal subdivisions, no further survey or plat shall be required, and all placer mining claims located after the tenth of May, eighteen hundred and seventy-two, shall conform as near as practicable with the United States system of public land surveys, and no such location shall include more than twenty acres for each individual claimant; but where placer claims can not be conformed to legal subdivisions, surveys and plat shall be made as on unsurveyed lands: and where by the segregation of mineral lands in any legal sub-divisions a quantity of agricultural land less than forty acres remains, such fractional portions of agricultural lands may be entered by any party qualified by law, for homestead or pre-emption purposes.

Placer Claims Containing Lodes.

Section 2333. Where the same person, association or corporation, is in possession of a placer claim, and also a vein or lode included within the boundaries thereof, application shall be made for a patent for the placer claim, with the statement that it includes such vein or lode, and in such case a patent shall issue for a placer claim, subject to the provisions of this chapter, including such vein or lode, upon the payment of $5.00 per acre for such vein or lode claim, and twenty-five feet of surface on each side thereof. The remainder of the placer claim, or any placer claim not embracing any vein or lode claim, shall be paid at the rate of $2.50 per acre, together with all costs of proceedings; and where a vein or lode, such as is described in section 2320, is known to exist within the boundaries of a placer claim, an application for a patent for such placer claim which does not include an application for the vein or lode claim shall be construed as a conclusive declaration that the claimant of the placer claim has no right of possession of the vein or lode claim; but where the existence of a vein or lode in a placer claim is not known, a patent for the placer claim shall convey all valuable mineral and other deposits within the boundaries thereof.

Section 2332. Where such person, or association, they and their grantors, have held and worked their claims for a period equal to the time prescribed by the statute of limitations for mining claims of the state or territory where the same may be situated, evidence of such possession and the working of the claims for such period shall be sufficient to establish a right to a patent thereto under this chapter, in the absence of any adverse claim; but nothing in this chapter shall be deemed to impair any lien which may have attached in any way whatever to any mining claim, or property thereto prior to the issuance of a patent.

Section 2321. Proof of citizenship, under this chapter, may consist in the case of an individual, of his own affidavit thereof; in the case of an association of persons unincorporated, of the affidavit of their authorized agent made on his own knowledge, or upon information and belief, and in the case of a corporation organized under the laws of the United States, or of any state or territory thereof, by the filing of a certified copy of their charter or certificate of incorporation.

FORM 1—DISCOVERY NOTICE.

The ..... lode, discovered by .....
 190 ..... claim feet ..... and ..... feet from discovery.

The above form may be used by prospectors who can not at the time of discovery run the lines, and definitely describe the location; within a reasonable time (thirty days), the lines should be surveyed or definitely located, and a new location notice posted. (See form below.)

FORM 2—NOTICE OF LOCATION.

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned, having complied with the requirements of chapter 6, title 32, Revised Statutes of the United States, and the local customs, laws and regulations, has located ..... linear feet on the ..... lode, situated in ..... mining district, in ..... County, State of .....; described as follows:

Discovered ..... Located .....
 ..... Locator.

Care must be taken to describe the claim accurately by reference to natural objects, such as mountains or spurs, and the boundaries must be also directly marked on the ground to show the extent and location of the claim, being suitable monuments. Should be as nearly as practicable as the following diagram.

FORM 3—LOCATION CERTIFICATE—LODE CLAIM.

Know all men by these presents, that I, .....
..... of the County of ....., State of ....., claim by right of discovery and location ..... feet, linear, and horizontal measurement, on the ..... lode, along the vein thereof, with all its dips, variations and angles; together with ..... feet in width on each side of the middle of said vein at the surface, and all veins, lodes, ledges, deposits and surface ground within the lines of said claim; ..... feet on said lode running ..... from the center of the discovery shaft, and ..... feet, running ..... from said center of discovery shaft.

Said claim is situated in the ..... of in ..... mining district, County of ....., State of ....., and bounded and described as follows:

Date of discovery ....., 190... Staked and located ....., 190... Date of certificate .....
....., 190...

Attest .....

As a part of this form, and in addition to the data therein given, the claimant is required to state the names of adjoining claims, and if none adjoin, the relative position of those nearest, or show by affidavit or otherwise why this is not done.
This is an essential requirement.

This notice must be recorded in the office of the mining recorder and in the office of the auditor of the county in which the claim is situate.

FORM 10—APPLICATION FOR PATENT.

....., County of ....., ss.

Application for patent for the ..... mining claim.

To the Register and Receiver of the United States Land Office at ....., being duly sworn according to law, deposes and says, that in virtue of a compliance with the mining rules, regulations and customs, by himself, the said .....
..... and his co-claimants (residents of each should be stated) ..... applicants for patent herein, ha... become owner of and ..... in the actual, quiet and undisturbed possession of ..... linear feet of the .....

vein, lode or deposit, bearing . . . . . together with surface ground . . . . . feet in width, for the convenient working thereof, as allowed by local rules and customs of miners; said mineral claims, vein, lode or deposit and surface ground being situated in the . . . . . mining district, county of . . . . . and . . . . . of . . . . . and being more particularly set forth and described in the official field notes of survey thereof, hereto attached, dated . . . . . day of . . . . . A. D. 190., . . . . . and in the official plat of said survey, now posted conspicuously upon said mining claim or premises, a copy of which is filed herewith. Deponent further states that the facts relative to the right of possession of himself (and his said co-claimants hereinbefore named) to said mining claim, vein, lode or deposit and surface ground, so surveyed and platted, are substantially as follows, to-wit:

(Trace the history of the lode fully.) Which will more fully appear by reference to the copy of the original record of location and the abstract of title hereto attached and made a part of this affidavit; the value of the labor done and improvements made upon said . . . . . claim, by himself and his grantors, being to the sum of $500.00, and said improvements consist of (describe fully). In consideration of which facts, and in conformity with the provisions of chapter 6 of title 32 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, application is hereby made for and in behalf of said . . . . . for a patent from the government of the United States for the said . . . . . mining claim, vein, lode, deposit and the surface ground so officially surveyed and platted.

Subscribed to and sworn to before me this . . . . . day of . . . . . A. D. 190., and I hereby certify that I consider the above deponent a credible and reliable person, and that the foregoing affidavit, to which was attached the field notes of survey of the . . . . . mining claim, was read and examined by him before his signature was affixed thereto and the oath made by him.

(Official Signature.)

Note.—The above is slightly changed in applying for placer mines.

MINING DISTRICTS.

It was formerly the custom all over Alaska for miners to form their own districts, elect recorders and make their own rules and regulations. This custom has been in a measure superseded on the north coast by cutting the entire coast into seven large districts, a recorder who is also a U. S. Commissioner being appointed by the district judge to reside in each district.

This innovation has many good features to recommend it. Formerly the miners carved out a district irrespective of the topographical features of the country, and often made their districts twenty or twenty-five miles square as was the case at Cape Nome. This led to endless confusion as the dividing line was seldom accurately known and oftentimes divided a creek in the middle. Under the present system a district takes in certain rivers and their tributaries, and the dividing lines are clearly defined. The system has its drawbacks, however, as oftentimes the recorder is fifty miles away from the ground to be recorded, and the trails are often impassable. Under the old system if there was much ground to be recorded the miners promptly elected one of their number to do the work.

PENITENTIARY.

Many criminals are now having to be provided for. The more strictly the laws are enforced in the cities on the lower coast the more surely will the criminal element migrate this way. Those who are now convicted of heinous crimes and sentenced to a term over one year are now transported to Mc-Neils Island, Washington. That prison now contains a pretty large contingent from Alaska. The time has arrived when a penitentiary should be built here, for instead of having fewer criminals we are bound to have a large increase annually, and some of them most desperate, such as the man who murdered the three prospectors on Unimak Island last June.

If an island was selected in Sitka Harbor for a penitentiary, nearly all the labor in its construction might be performed by prisoners who are now held in idleness in the Sitka jail.

Gazetteer of Yukon Territory

To attempt to write the history of the Yukon Territory in the space allotted will of course be impossible. Its first residents were men who had spent many years along the Yukon River, perfectly satisfied to make "a grub stake" for the coming year, and with but dim ideas and faint hopes of any very large fortune. Isolated as they were from civilization, and spending so many long, idle winter days together, they grew to know each other like members of an immense family; each knew the other's shortcomings and defects of temper, and serious quarrels were very rare. In such a land, where no man knew what the future held in store for him, charity developed amazingly, and they helped each other, even to the last dollar, in a manner that the world might well imitate.

The miner who came in penniless after a season's vain search for the elusive gold dust, knew, if he were any man at all, that his brother miners would help him; that the latch string of every cabin was on the outside of its one door, night and day, and that he could get credit at the store. Indeed, here was a phase of business unknown to the present merchants, and it is said that Jack McQuestion, "the father of the Yukon," trusted all comers while he ran the Alaska Commercial Company's store at Forty-Mile, and said that the only way he ever lost a bill was by the death of a customer. In those days no man locked his door, or had the means of locking it. The natives were honest. Even the malamute dogs partook of this innate honesty to a certain degree, and were useless as watch dogs; they welcomed the stranger with wagging tail at any time during the day or night as kindly as though he were their master.

This was the state of affairs upon the Yukon when George Carmack, with "Skookum Charlie" and "Takish Tom" found the first pan of gold at the foot of the now historical birch tree on Bonanza Creek.

There was no strain of selfishness in Carmack's nature. He was a Yukoner pure and simple, and after staking a claim for himself and one for each of his Indian friends, he hastened to Forty Mile to spread the good news. The miners believed his tale. A few men engaged in business in the lower river towns made light of it, in view of the fact that their business would be ruined by a stampede, but the "poke" of gold dust exhibited by Carmack spoke more eloquently than words, and the Klondike Boom was on.

This was in August, 1896, and during the following month Bonanza Creek was staked for four miles up and down stream from Discovery. The credit for discovering gold on Eldorado probably belongs to Antone Standard, who, in company with "old man Whipple" and four others, disappointed at being unable to stake claims on Bonanza Creek near the Discovery claim, wandered up the right-hand fork, which they denominated a "moose pasture," and which is now known as Eldorado Creek.

The winter of 1896 was uneventful on the Klondike. The few men who were there and had staked claims were well satisfied with the outlook, and expected to clean up better than a grub stake during the coming season, but their wildest dreams did not conjure up such richness or such vast quantities of gold as their claims really held.

In the spring of 1897 the richness of the Klondike was known up and down the river from Circle City to Sixty Mile, and every man, woman and child who could make the trip, journeyed over the ice to the new diggings.

Bonanza Creek, where the first strike was made, is about twenty-five miles long and empties into the Klondike River some three miles from its mouth. Near the mouth of this last named river there was a big flat surrounded by slightly wooded steep hills, and here most of the stamperers pitched their tents or erected the cabins that formed the nucleus of Dawson.

A squad of Canadian mounted police, under command of Capt. Constantine, were early upon the scene, although but little needed. There was little or no fighting, "gun plays" were unknown, and with little or no dishonesty. The laws of Canada, or of the district, written and unwritten, are severe but just. The dreams of claim owners are not disturbed as on the other side by fear of the "jumper." When one gets a claim recorded in the Klondike it is his so long as he lives up to the law.

The Canadian mounted police were at that time, and are today, one of the finest bodies of men in the world. They are polite, educated, obliging, and at the same time firm and utterly fearless in the discharge of their duty.

Capt. Constantine resigned his position and was succeeded in time by Col. Steele, that veteran of the mounted police, to whom its very organization is due. His administration brought the policing of the district into a high state of efficiency and made it almost impossible for crime to go unpunished.

In the fall of 1897 the news of the wonderful riches of the Klondike had gone abroad, and about 5,000 of the most hardy and venturesome reached the new camp, while half as many more were caught by the ice along the river and upon the lakes. Many of them brought their own outfits and provisions, but a larger number depended upon purchasing a winter's supply at Dawson, and there was not enough to go around. The early closing of the river had caught many of the river steamers in its toils, and there were ample supplies of food at different points down the river. Several steamer-loads of men, destitute of everything except money, were taken down the river almost by force and wintered at Circle City and Fort Yukon.

In the meantime the claims on Bonanza and Eldorado had been found to be uniformly rich. Just over the divide Andrew Hunker had found big pay on what is now known as Hunker Creek. "Swiftwater Bill" had made a discovery on Sulphur Creek, and in the stampede which followed, every claim along that stream was taken. Dominion Creek had been stamped in June and July, and was known to be rich, and several tributaries and gulches of the above mentioned streams were yielding nuggets. Bench claims up to this time were almost unknown. The many streams emptying into the Yukon River, and all the upper tributaries of the Klondike, were also stamped and staked during the winter, and although entirely unprospected, were supposed to be as rich as the streams first found; and as every miner and would-be miner around Dawson had from four to six of these claims, each counted himself a rich man. Small wonder, then, that though the surrounding hillsides were covered with timber, it was hard to hire a man to cut and deliver a cord of wood for $60 in gold dust. The men who sat around the stoves that winter built many castles in the air. The principal topic of conversation was how to invest the money they expected to make, and men without the price of a meal talked as freely of thousands as outside people do of car fare. When spring came they ceased talking of government bonds, farms in California, and brick buildings, and went to work prospecting. The opening of navigation brought thousands of eager gold hunters, and the newcomers, let it be said, unable to get creek claims, staked the benches, and thus uncovered the greater richness of the Klondike.

POPULATION OF THE YUKON.

The great rush to the Klondike reached its high-water mark in the summer of 1898, at which time, from such crude information as the Northwest Mounted Police could gather from the fleet of scows coming down the river, it was estimated that fully 50,000 people were landed at Dawson and camped at the mouth of the Klondike. Fully 40,000 of these never had any business there or in that country, and, failing to find the expected manna of the wilderness falling into their open mouths, and discouraged and lacking in the resourceful qualities essential to such a pioneer life, they soon drifted back out of the country. Long before the winter of 1898-9 had closed the Yukon river, the majority of this "cold-footed" contingent had returned to the States, rich in experience and full of hard-luck stories. The more hardy ones who remained were soon scattered along the outlying creeks, or engaged in business in the city, and the Yukon territory during that winter settled itself down to hard, practical work, which bore rich fruit, as witnessed by the output of the following summer. During the open season of 1899 the territory lost a large number of its floating population by reason of the Nome excitement, leaving a permanent population in Dawson, when the winter of 1899-1900 set in, variously estimated at between 5,000 and 6,000, while the population of the entire territory, Dawson included, was figured by the police at about 16,000. During the summer of 1901, the official census was taken by the Canadian Government under the supervision of Major H. J. Woodside, showing a total population in the Yukon Territory of 21,000.

THE YUKON OFFICIALS.

The administration of the Yukon has been relegated chiefly to the Department of the Interior of the Government of Canada. This department's officials include the Commissioner of the Territory, the Gold Commissioner, the Crown Land and Timber Agent, the Comptroller, the Legal Adviser, the Registrar of Land Titles, and the Territorial Secretary, with their staffs of clerks and stenographers, and the Northwest Mounted Police.

The Department of Justice is represented by two judges, a sheriff, a clerk of the court and their subordinates; the Department of Customs by a collector and his clerks; the Department of Marine and Fisheries by an inspector, and the Public Works by several officials.

Five of the chief officials constitute, with the Commissioner, the Yukon Council. These were Senior Judge, the Gold Commissioner, the Legal Adviser, the Registrar, and the officer commanding the Northwest Mounted Police, who attended to the executive and legislative work of the Yukon. These men, in addition to the heavy duties pertaining to their particular offices, assembled in parliamentary form once or twice weekly, after office hours, prepared ordinances for the local government of the territory. The following is the personnel of the Yukon Council:

Yukon Council—Commissioner Ross, Gold Commissioner Senkler, Justice Dugas, Crown Prosecutor Congdon, Registrar Giroroud, Major Wood, Arthur Wilson and A. J. Prudhomme.

YUKON OFFICIALS.

The Commissioner—James Hamilton Ross.
 Gold Commissioner—E. C. Senkler.
 Judges—Justice Dugas and Justice Craig.
 Crown Prosecutor—Frederick T. Congdon.
 Comptroller—J. T. Lithgow.
 Registrar—J. E. Girouard.
 Territorial Secretary—Dr. J. N. E. Brown.
 Clerk of the Territorial Court—Charles McDonald.
 Deputy Clerk of the Territorial Court—J. Southerland.
 Assistant Gold Commissioner—T. Dufferin Pattullo.
 Bailiff—John Richardson.
 License Inspector—J. D. MacGregor.
 Sheriff—R. J. Eilbeck.
 Postmaster—I. J. Hartman.
 Telegraphic Superintendent—M. Creen.
 Inspector of Fisheries—T. A. Stewart.
 Crown Timber Land Agent—F. X. Gosseline.

Health Officer—Dr. J. H. MacArthur.

Assessor—E. Ward Smith.

Architect—T. W. Fuller.

The sub-divisions are:

Bonanza creek and tributaries—Inspector D. A. C. Robertson.

Dominion creek and tributaries—Phillip Holiday.

Hunker creek—P. H. Belcher.

Gold Run—Percy Reed.

Sulphur creek—G. W. Buxton.

Recording offices and recorders are: Stewart river district, Stewart, Recorder L. Burwash; Clear creek district, Barlow, Recorder W. C. Young; Hootalinqua, Recorder L. Pa-caud; Selkirk, Recorder Ralph Creighton; Forty Mile, Recorder E. C. G. Touche.

THE NORTHWEST MOUNTED POLICE.

The Northwest Mounted Police force of the Yukon Territory consists of 230 officers and men, with outposts at the following places: Stickeen, Dalton Trail, Dalton House, Cariboo, Tagish, Upper Lebarge, Lower Lebarge, Cut-Off, Hootalinqua, Five Fingers, Hootchiku, Selkirk, Selwyn, Stewart River, Half Way, McQuestion, Ogilvie, Indian River, Forty Mile, Tantulus, The Forks, Dominion Creek, Hunker Creek, Sulphur Creek and Gold Run.

The following are the commanding officers of the Northwest Mounted Police: Major Wood, commanding Yukon District Mounted Police, headquarters, Dawson; Inspector Starnes, commanding Dawson District, Dawson; Inspectors McGibbon, Routledge, MacDonell; Assistant Surgeons Pari Fraser, Madden and Thompson.

The chief duties of the police is the maintenance of law and order in the territory. This means not only the policing of Dawson and the mines, but also of the outposts extending from the lower boundary to White Pass. The police officers collect the royalty, act as escorts to the gold laden miners between their claims and the Yukon metropolis, fill the offices of mining recorders, and postmasters in the remote districts and perform other duties more or less important, the story of which would furnish material for a lengthy article in itself.

"B" Division N. W. M. P., Dawson.

FUEL IN THE KLONDIKE.

The rapid inroads made by miners and prospectors on the timber of all the hills along the creeks tributary to the Klondike threatened at one time to create a famine in the matter of fuel. These fears, however, were soon dispelled by the discovery of a good quality of bituminous coal in several sections of the country, up as well as down the Yukon from Dawson. These several mines proved themselves to be more valuable than any gold mine, and with the advent of capital and machinery were soon opened up and made productive. The result is that today Dawson has a number of large coal yards with supplies on hand that should carry the community through the severest possible winter if snowed up and unable to get out for wood. The price of coal at Dawson is low, when compared with the cost of other commodities in the country, as well as the cost of production. Last year the retail price per ton ranged between $25 and $30. Next winter it is expected to be lower, possibly $20 and perhaps even below those figures.

There is no fear of a shortage of wood for fuel, as the upper river section of the Yukon is known to be filled with dense forests of fine timber, good for lumber as well as fuel, and which will take several generations to exhaust. Every year will see improved methods in the manner of getting logs down to Dawson, and by increasing the supply at reduced cost of production it must necessarily bring down with it the selling market price.

Another industry in the line of fuel has been started, namely, peat. Experiments have been made with beds of peat found in several sections of the Yukon and good results are looked for from them.

FLOWERS AND VEGETABLES.

Flower gardens and vegetable gardens abound in every section of the residence portion of Dawson, as well as out on the creeks; and whereas three years ago it was deemed impossible to raise anything in the line of vegetables or flowers, today everybody in there knows that owing to the twenty hours of sunlight out of every twenty-four, it is perfectly practical to raise better and larger vegetables in a shorter period of time than can be done in any part of the states.

There is today hardly a residence in and around Dawson that has not its own little patch of ground well tilled and set out in vegetables for home use, as well as another patch in front of the house for ornamental floral purposes. Flowers on the Yukon grow wild and in great profusion on every hill, and the cultured varieties are only just beginning to be raised in anything like an appreciable quantity.

DAIRIES, FEED; POULTRY.

Dairying is now a recognized and profitable industry on the Yukon, and whereas two years ago condensed milk was the only article used, today every hotel, restaurant and home is supplied with fresh milk from the numerous dairies around Dawson. These are all under the supervision of the government health officer, so that watered milk is not possible under the heavy penalty that follows a conviction, and pure milk is therefore the daily rule. The supply appears to be ample to meet all demands, and 25 cents a glass for rich, creamery milk is still the prevailing price.

Butter making is also carried on to some extent. All butter in the Yukon is canned, so that real freshly churned butter is a luxury that few can afford, even in the Klondike, and the few pounds that are turned out weekly find a ready sale at fancy figures.

The Yukon district abounds in valleys in which rich grasses grow wild, almost equal in nutritive qualities to the famous blue grass of Kentucky. It is tall, long and coarse, and makes splendid fodder for winter use. This has also become quite an important industry, and every summer sees tons upon tons of it floated into Dawson, both loose and baled, for winter use. The prices range in winter from $15 to $25 a hundred pounds. During the summer months horses and cattle find all the feed they want on the hillsides, and the grass in winter, together with chopped feeds of which the market is well stocked, keeps the animals in good condition for work and for milking purposes all winter.

The crow of the rooster and the telltale cackling of the busy hen are now heard in many sections of Dawson and out on the creeks. It was said that hens could not live and if they did live that they would not lay during the winter months. Both statements have been proven false and several enterprising housewives in Dawson today have, by warmly housing their fowls, been able to raise eggs enough right along and make extra money enough off them to buy $100 Easter bonnets, which, according to Dawson prices is considered dirt cheap. Poultry raising on an extended scale is one of the early possibilities of the Klondike.

MINERAL RESOURCES.

Gold mining is, of course, the principal industry, and the metal almost universally sought for, as very little silver, if any, is found. Just below Dawson is a mineralized zone in limestone. Specimens from this zone have been found to contain small amounts of nickel, chromium and antimony. A small vein of argentiferous galena crosses Forty-mile Creek a few miles above its mouth. Native copper is found in many places, notably near White Horse Rapids. There is coal of fair quality, and in commercial quantities, along the Yukon, both above and below Dawson. These veins of coal occur in beds of sandstone, shale and clay, and usually contain fossil plants, leaves, cones and other evidences of ancient coniferous forests. Like all tertiary coals, the mineral is light in proportion to its bulk, burns rapidly with little smoke, and has a tendency to break up into small pieces under the action of the weather.

Asbestos has also been found in small quantities in several parts of the Yukon Valley, and platinum is oftentimes found associated with the gold. The existence of petroleum has been reported from time to time, but so far nothing has been done to develop it.

Quartz of great richness has been discovered in the Klondike country, veins being exceedingly abundant on the Klondike River. Nearly all of the large nuggets found in the placer mines contain quartz, and there can be no question that it is of local origin and derived from the quartz veins and silicified schists of the district. Quartz pebbles specked with gold are often found. A boulder taken from No. 4 Bonanza Ceeek, weighing 60 ounces contained 20 ounces of gold. Evidence of the local origin of the gold is also afforded by the markedly angular and unworn character of the nuggets found in the gulches. It is highly improbable that the gold-bearing veins have all been swept away and their metallic contents concentrated in the valleys, great as the corrosion has been. The principal metallic minerals of the veins, so far as found, are pyrite, chalcopyrite, galena (usually argentiferous), and occasionally free gold.

PLACER MINING.

It was formerly the custom to pick through the overlying strata or muck and burn down through the gravel by means of wood fires. The miner usually laid his fire at night, so constructing it as to cause the greater amount of heat to be thrown against the pay streak, and preventing the fire from burning upward, and thereby caving in the shaft by putting a "blanket" of green wood on top.

During the past two years, however, steam thawers have been almost universally used, and the wood fire is only resorted to by prospectors and those unable to obtain a thawer. Under these new conditions it is possible to work the entire year.

The production of gold in the Klondike district since this discovery is roughly estimated at over $80,000,000. Many competent authorities, however, place the output much higher.

Modern methods and the latest improved machinery, taken with the lower rate in wages and the large amount of ground being worked, all undoubtedly make up for any deficiency caused by the enormously rich spots having been worked out. The throwing open for location of the crown claims, and the opening to the public of many of the "closed creeks" will also have a beneficial effect and give a stimulus to mining that has of late been wanting.

MINING LAWS OF THE YUKON.

The mining laws at the time of the discovery of the Klondike were well defined and well known. Creek claims were 500 feet long, bench claims were 100 feet square, and quartz claims were 600x1500 feet. In the year 1898 the mining laws were revised and changed and a creek or gulch claim was limited to 250 feet, measuring in the general direction of the creek or gulch, the side lines to be along the rim rock, or as generally spoken of "from rim to rim." Under decisions from the Gold Commissioners, and approved at Ottawa, these side lines follow the rim rock three feet higher than the rim or the edge of the creek; but such boundaries were not, in any case, to exceed 1000 feet on each side of the center of the stream or gulch.

A RIVER CLAIM shall be situated only on one side of the river, and shall not exceed 250 feet in length, measured in the general direction of the river. The other boundary of a River Claim running in the general direction of the river shall be lined along bed rock or rim rock three feet higher than the rim or the edge of the river within the claim * * * but such boundaries shall not in any case be less than 250 feet, or exceed a distance of 1000 feet from low water mark of the river.

A HILL CLAIM, commonly called "hill side," shall not exceed 250 feet in length, parallel to the main direction of the stream on which it fronts. Parallel lines drawn from each end of the base line at right angles thereto, and running to the summit of the hill, shall constitute the end boundaries of the claim, providing the distance does not exceed 1000 feet.

All other placer claims are 250 feet square.

Every placer claim shall be as nearly as possible rectangular in form, and marked by two legal posts firmly fixed in the ground. The line between the two posts shall be well cut out, so that one post may, if the nature of the surface will permit, be seen from the other. The flatted side of each post shall face the claim, and on each post shall be written on the side facing the claim a legible notice stating the name, or the number of the claim, or both, if possible; its length in feet, the date when staked, and the full Christian and surname of the locator.

Restrictions as to the number of claims that a free miner might locate and hold, has also been abolished, and they are now allowed to stake at least one claim on every bench, gulch or river in the territory, and a person may, at any time, abandon a claim that does not pay and stake a second claim on the same creek on proper proof that no pay can be found on the abandoned property.

Every person who desires to prospect, locate, or develop mining property, must be a free miner, and take out a free miners' license. As a matter of fact, the mining laws of the Yukon Territory are now extremely liberal when compared with the past and when compared with those of other countries are all that can be desired. The additional security given to the miner that he shall not be disturbed in his possession, the freedom from jumping, and the absence of the pernicious litigation that has clouded titles on the American side, give the Yukon much the best of a comparison between the two countries.

A royalty of 5 per cent of the gold output from each claim is exacted when the output is more than $5000. Anything less than this sum is exempted.

GAME LAWS OF THE YUKON.

The Yukon Territory, as well as the whole of Alaska, is a paradise for the hunter. There are grouse, partridges and ptarmigan, innumerable; and ducks, geese, snipe, cranes and wild swans by the thousand. Of the larger game there are caribou, deer, mountain sheep or goats, elk, moose and musk oxen. The game has been slaughtered in season and out of season for food and for fun, and without restriction, until January 19, 1901, an ordinance was enacted for the "Preservation of Game in the Yukon Territory."

The ordinance provides for a "close season," during which time the game shall not be hunted, taken, killed, shot at, wounded, injured or molested in any manner.

Buffalo and bison are not to be killed at all.

Musk ox, elk, moose, caribou, deer, mountain sheep or goats, only during the months of October, November and December.

Grouse, partridges, ptarmigan, pheasants and prairie chickens, only from the first day of October to the 15th of January.

Wild swans, ducks, geese, snipe, etc., from September to June.

The ordinance further provides that no one person shall have the right to kill during the same season more than two of the large animals without a special permit, and the person purchasing meat shall keep a register showing the names of the persons purchased from.

The new law also protects the eggs of the wild bird, and prohibits the use of batteries, swivel guns, and punts, as well as the use of poison or pitfalls.

Certain exceptions are made by the ordinance in favor of the Indians, and of explorers, surveyors, prospectors and miners, who actually need food.

Northern Sawmill Co., Klondike Mill Co.

The penalties for the violation of this ordinance range from $100 to $500, with three months' imprisonment, and the law will be rigidly enforced.

FORESTS OF THE YUKON.

The forest trees consist of the white and black spruces, the aspen and balsam poplars and a species of birch. No pine or fir trees were noticed. The lower ridges and the slopes of the higher ones up to a height of 3500 feet above the sea, are generally wooded, and stunted spruces occur sparingly on the highest points in the district. The valley-flats are only partly wooded. Groves of spruce and poplar occur at intervals, but alternate with bare swamps and marshes too soft to support a forest growth.

The white spruce is the most important tree for general purposes in the district. It is usually small on the ridges, seldom exceeding a foot in diameter, but in the valley-flats occasional specimens attain a diameter of over two feet and a large proportion of the logs cut for lumber measure from nine to fifteen inches across. The supply for the mills at Dawson is obtained mostly from the flats and islands along the upper Yukon, and from the Klondike valley, and is ample for all purposes for many years to come. The Klondike is bordered at intervals all the way from its mouth to the mountains by groves and small tracts of spruce forest of surprising size and quality considering the latitude, and supplies of well grown spruce timber are also available from all the larger tributaries of the Upper Yukon as well as from the main valley, and can be easily and cheaply floated down to Dawson.

The supply of large timber on the producing creeks themselves is limited, but the bordering ridges are nearly everywhere, except on the higher points, clothed with an open forest of small spruce, birch and poplar ranging from a few inches to a foot or more in diameter. A portion has been destroyed by forest fires, but sufficient remains to furnish all the fire-wood and most of the lumber required for mining purposes for a considerable time.

SHIPMENTS FROM AMERICAN PORTS.

Shipments of freight via steamer consigned to go over the W. P. & Y. Route for points in B. C. and Y. T. shipped at Seattle, Tacoma, Portland and San Francisco, require to be accompanied by the following papers addressed to the general agent of the W. P. & Y. R. at Skagway.

Four certified invoices; or two shipper's manifests and two invoices.

Two through bills of lading, stating steamer goods are shipped upon.

If goods shipped at United States ports are intended to go forward from point of shipments to destination in bond, three copies of "Canadian Custom Special Steamer Manifest," containing statement of each consignment as shipped, will be required to accompany the goods.

CERTIFIED INVOICES.

The following certificate is prescribed for invoices of merchandise sold to importers in Canada and exported thereto, to be signed in Canada and exported thereto, to be signed by a partner, official or employe of the exporter having a knowledge of the facts certified to, and to be written printed or stamped on the face or back of the invoice, viz.:

"This invoice is true and correct; and where there is a difference between any of the prices shown therein and ordinary credit prices at which the same articles are now sold bona fide by the exporter in like quantity and condition at this place for consumption in this country, the latter prices are shown on the margin or elsewhere on such invoice.

"Dated at....., 190...."

The above prescribed form of certificate is required for each and every invoice of goods entering B. C. or Y. T. from American ports.

SHIPMENTS FROM CANADIAN PORTS.

Canadian goods shipped from Vancouver, Victoria and other Canadian ports, destined to points in B. C. and Y. T., shippers will be required to furnish for the United States customs, Skagway, where an entry of all Canadian goods arriving at Skagway in transit for points in B. C. and Y. T. is required to be made, the following papers, same to be sent to the general agent of the W. P. & Y. R. at Skagway:

Two certified invoices.

Three copies of bills of lading, stating name of steamer goods are shipped on.

If certified invoices and bill of lading do not reach the general agent at Skagway as soon as the goods arrive, the goods will be sent to general order warehouse by customs officers, thereby incurring extra expense and delay.

Have goods consigned to the Pacific & Arctic Railway Co. on bill of lading.

Every package must be marked distinctly with name or shipping marks of consignee, and have bill of lading and invoices made out bearing same marks as goods.

Invoices should be made out to show number of packages and what each package contains.

Goods shipped from Canadian points to B. C. and Y. T., intended to go forward from point of shipment to destination in bond, must be accompanied by two copies of "Canadian Customs Special Steamer Manifest," containing statement of each consignment shipped, addressed to supervising officer Canadian customs at Skagway, which the purser of the steamer will deliver on arrival at Skagway. W. P. & Y. R. agents at Vancouver and Victoria will see that the manifests are handed to the purser of steamer.

CANADIAN CUSTOMS LAWS.

The Canadian government passes, free of duty, wearing apparel, articles of personal adornment, toilet articles and similar personal effects as travelers' baggage for use of persons for immediate purposes of the journey; the duty on American goods averages about 30 per cent, and, so far as known at present, it is not thought there will be any change in the customs laws this year.

ABANDONMENT OF CLAIMS.

After prospecting a claim and finding it worthless for ordinary placer mining, notice of abandonment can be filed with the gold commissioner or recorder and a grant for another claim in the same district will be issued if applied for.

WATER RIGHTS.

Every miner shall be entitled to the use of sufficient water naturally flowing through his claim as shall be necessary for the working of his property, unless previously lawfully appropriated. Then he must make application to the gold commissioner to secure same.

A NEW DISCOVERER.

Of a mine shall be allowed a claim 1000 feet in length. To two discoverers, 1500 feet. No royalty will be imposed upon discovery claims. To party of over two the ordinary size claim to each member. A new discovery, where claims have been previously worked and abandoned, shall be deemed a new one.

SURVEYS.

Surveys made under instructions of the commissioner by a duly qualified surveyor shall be accepted as defining the boundaries of the claim surveyed if they are approved and remain unprotected after 12 successive publications in the official paper.

MINING INSPECTOR

Shall have the power to order any mining work to be carried on so as not to endanger workmen or the general public. He has authority to enter and examine any mine within the meaning of the regulations.

City. This place sprang into existence in June, 1900, from the rich beach diggings found there. This phenomenal piece of beach, which is less than a mile long, produced nearly $1,000,000 in gold within a few weeks. Hundreds of miners who chanced to be passing up and down the coast gathered there after the first strike and made their home stake. The mining operations were conducted with rockers, the water being dipped out of Bering Sea, as the richest part of the ground was close to the water.

CARIBOO CITY, Y. T.

CARIBOO CITY is a sand flat, and was at one time the bottom of the lake. Around the adjacent mountain sides you can see the high water marks of, who knows, how many years or aeons ago. The lake is some two or three miles wide at points, and narrows to a little neck, called Cariboo Crossing, over which the train passes by means of a draw bridge. The Alaska Pacific Express Co. have a station here in charge of J. H. Wickardt.

CIRCLE CITY, ALASKA.

CIRCLE CITY was once the most important town in Northern Alaska, but was almost depopulated by the Klondike strike. It contains many substantial log cabins and buildings, and is at present indulging in an incipient boom by reason of the late strikes on the Tanana river. Among the producing creeks near Circle City may be mentioned Birch creek, which is more like a river, and 350 miles long. It flows in almost a perfect semi-circle to within eight miles of Circle City. The Birch creek diggings are among the best in the interior on the Alaska side, having been worked since 1891. Mastodon creek was the best paying stream in the district.

A Great Newspaper

The Seattle Daily and Sunday Times have the largest circulation in the Pacific Northwest, the daily having 28,000 circulation per diem and the Sunday 31,000.

The Daily Times consists of 14 to 24 pages and The Sunday Times from 40 to 56 pages and is the largest Sunday publication on the Pacific Slope—while The Daily Times is the largest evening paper published in the world.

The subscription price for The Daily and Sunday Times delivered by mail or carrier is: 50 cents for one month, $1.50 for three months, $3 for six months, and $6 for twelve months.

The Seattle Weekly Times costs $1 per annum.

The Seattle Sunday Times costs $2.25 per annum.

The Weekly Times, consisting of 12, 14 and 16 pages, carrying a complete review of the week's news and leading special articles, is published every Wednesday morning, so as to reach all Pacific Northwest subscribers by Saturday night of the week of publication.

If you want the best daily newspaper, or the best Sunday newspaper, at the lowest price charged west of the Rocky Mountains, subscribe for one of the publications above described.

All subscriptions are payable in advance. For further information address:

DAWSON, Y. T.

That a modern metropolitan city, whose inhabitants enjoy every element of the refinements of civilization—whose commerce and industries, exceed in volume that of many cities founded half a century ago, whose site lies in the centre of a district covering countless millions in wealth and whose variation in temperature exceeds 160 degrees—should spring into existence as if by magic above the 64th parallel of north latitude on the Western Hemisphere, is an astounding fact.

In many respects the history of Dawson is the most wonderful known to modern times, and, indeed, only the commercial advancement of the present age makes such a history possible. A trifle more than four years since Dawson was unthought of, even as the nucleus of the present flourishing city, let alone what it is today, one of the most modern, and at the same time, perhaps the newest and most isolated city in the world, and it has become all of this in four years' time and in the face of a climate which a few brief years since was considered in more favored parts impossible for the white race to withstand.

To attempt to write the history of the Klondike or of Dawson in the space allotted will of course be impossible, for Dawson, though young, is rich in incidents that may well be called history. This infant metropolis has been the scene of more excitement and has been more talked of during that time than any city of its size on the face of the globe.

There was about this mining camp an atmosphere wholly unknown to any other mining camp in history. Its first residents were men who had spent many years along the Yukon River, perfectly satisfied to make "a grub stake" for the coming year, and with but dim ideas and faint hopes of any very large fortune. Isolated as they were from civilization, and spending so many long, idle winter days together, they grew to know each other like members of an immense family; each knew the other's shortcomings and defects of temper, and serious quarrels were very rare. In such a land, where no man knew what the future held in store for him, charity developed amazingly, and they helped each other, even to the last dollar, in a manner that the world might well imitate.

The miner who came in penniless after a season's vain search for the elusive gold dust, knew, if he were any man at all, that his brother miners would help him; that the latch string of every cabin was on the outside of its one door, night and day, and that he could get credit at the store. Indeed, here was a phase of business unknown to the present merchants, and it is said that Jack McQuestion, "the father of the Yukon," trusted all comers while he ran the Alaska Commercial Company's store at Forty-Mile, and said the only way he ever lost a bill was by the death of a customer. In those days no man locked his door, or had the means of locking it. The natives were honest. Even the malamute dogs partook of this innate honesty to a certain degree, and were useless as watch dogs; they welcomed the stranger with wagging tail at any time during the day or night as kindly as though he were their master.

This was the state of affairs upon the Yukon when George Carmack, with "Skookum Charlie" and "Takish Tom" found the first pan of gold at the foot of the now historical birch tree on Bonanza Creek.

There was no strain of selfishness in Carmack's nature. He was a Yukoner pure and simple, and after staking a claim for himself and one for each of his Indian friends, he hastened to Forty Mile to spread the good news. The miners believed his tale. A few men engaged in business in the lower river towns made light of it, in view of the fact that their business would be ruined by a stampede, but the "poke" of gold dust exhibited by Carmack spoke more eloquently than words, and the Klondike boom was on.

This was in August, 1896, and during the following month Bonanza Creek was staked for four miles up and down stream from Discovery. The credit for discovering gold on Eldorado probably belongs to Antone Standard, who, in company with "old man Whipple" and four others, disappointed at being unable to stake claims on Bonanza Creek near the Discovery claim, wandered up the right-hand fork which they denominated a "moose pasture," and which is now known as Eldorado Creek.

In the spring of 1897 the richness of the Klondike was known up and down the river from Circle City to Sixty Mile, and every man, woman and child who could make the trip, journeyed over the ice to the new diggings.

Bonanza Creek, where the first strike was made, is about twenty-five miles long and empties into the Klondike River some three miles from its mouth. Near the mouth of this last named river there was a big flat surrounded by slightly wooded steep hills, and here most of the stampeders pitched their tents or erected the cabins that formed the nucleus of Dawson.

Mr. Fawcett, who had just been appointed Gold Commissioner and Dominion Land Surveyor for the district, arrived at this time. With his assistants, Messrs. Bolton and Craig, he opened the first Gold Commissioner's office of the growing city on Front street. It was a frame structure about 8x12 feet, and would accommodate and hold at a pinch about ten men. The spectacle of one hundred men standing in line day and night, with the thermometer hovering around the 50-below-zero mark, stamping their feet and swinging their arms to keep from freezing to death, was a common sight at this time.

Almost the entire flat on which Dawson is situated had been granted to Messrs. Harper and Ladue for a townsite, and they in turn sold lots to the settlers. Those who were unable or unwilling to purchase lots in the townsite, built their cabins on the side hills and far up the Klondike River, so that the larger part of Dawson had straggled far from the business center and was hidden from view by the surrounding hills. It is estimated that there were fully 35,000 people at Dawson during the summer of 1898.

Town lots that first sold for $5 increased rapidly in value in the spring of 1897 and changed hands at prices ranging from $100 to $500. Many of these sold in the spring of 1898 as high as $30,000, or from $500 to $1,000 per front foot.

By this time substantial buildings had taken the place of the tents and shacks, and although several disastrous fires occurred, better buildings took the places of the ones consumed. During the fall and winter of 1897 there was a great deal of sickness in the camp, and the one hospital there was taxed to its utmost capacity. At the head of this hospital was that good, old priest, Father Judge, who gave up his life in the interests of suffering humanity, and whose very name is revered by every old-timer on the river.

In the fall of 1897 the news of the wonderful riches of the Klondike had gone abroad, and about 5,000 of the most hardy and venturesome reached the new camp, while half as many more were caught by the ice along the river and upon the lakes. Many of them brought their own outfits and provisions, but a larger number depended upon purchasing a winter's supply at Dawson, and there was not enough to go around. The early closing of the river had caught many of the river steamers in its toils, and there were ample supplies of food at different points down the river. Several steamerloads of men, destitute of everything except money, were taken down the river almost by force and wintered at Circle City and Fort Yukon.

In the meanwhile the claims on Bonanza and Eldorado had been found to be uniformly rich. Just over the divide Andrew Hunker had found big pay on what is now known as Hunker Creek. "Swiftwater Bill" had made a discovery on Sulphur Creek, and in the stampede which followed, every claim along that stream was taken. Dominion Creek had been stamped in June and July, and was known to be rich, and several tributaries and gulches of the above mentioned streams were yielding nuggets. Bench claims up to this time were almost unknown. The many streams emptying into the Yukon River, and all the upper tributaries of the Klondike, were also stamped and staked during the winter, and although entirely unprospected, were supposed to be as rich as the streams first found; and as every miner and would-be miner around Dawson had from four to six of these claims, each counted himself a rich man. Small wonder, then, that though the surrounding hillsides were covered with timber, it was hard to hire a man to cut and deliver a cord of wood for $60 in gold dust. The men who sat around the stoves that winter built many castles in the air. The principal topic of conversation was how to invest the money they expected to make, and men without the price of a meal talked as freely of thousands as outside people do of car fare. When spring came they ceased talking of government bonds, farms in California, and brick buildings, and went to work prospecting. The opening of navigation brought thousands of eager gold hunters, and the newcomers, let it be said, unable to get creek claims, staked the benches, and thus uncovered the greater richness of the Klondike.

The sanitary conditions and the general health of the people of Dawson were indeed deplorable during the first year of the camp. The government finally undertook the drainage of the city; immense ditches, well protected by wooden culverts, were dug from the foothills to the river with lateral drains connecting. The result was beneficial in the highest degree, and the epidemic of typhoid fever that had raged at once abated.

The sanitary conditions there will perhaps be best expressed in the language of Alexander Grant Macdonald, M. D., Edinburg, Medical Superintendent of the Good Samaritan Hospital:

"The sanitary condition of Dawson in 1898 was such as to predispose it to the development and propagation of all diseases of an infectious character. The city was built on what was nothing more or less than a swamp, and the disposal of sewerage and every other sanitary arrangement was of a primitive and wholly unsatisfactory nature. In First avenue, our best street, teams of horses plunged and struggled vainly endeavoring to drag a very ordinary load. Goloshes and gum boots were the only preventatives of wet feet, and walking everywhere was a daily burden. Typhoid fever, dysentery, malaria and scurvy revelled in the conditions, congesting the hospitals and giving physicians every opportunity of exercising their benevolent calling. Foods were expensive and the cooking indifferent. The mortality was exceptionally high, probably averaging 28 per thousand. The water supply was scant, and little attention was paid as to its source or the prevention of soakage in the wells. Life insurance was impossible unless a large extra premium was paid. In cabins, hotels and public offices, empty bottles, mica, paper and cotton, acted as windows. At 50 below zero, ventilation was a by-word.

"In 1902 all this is changed, buildings of a modern type, with every attention paid to ventilation and healthy sanitary conditions, have replaced those of 1898. Broad, well-kept streets with dry, clean, modern sidewalks meet you on all sides. There is a complete electric system that changes the Arctic night into a continuous day. A perfect water supply from the fresh, clear, cold, water of the Klondike River, and closely inspected wells that give entire satisfaction. What was once a swamp has been changed by drainage into a dry prairie. The sanitary condition of the city is closely watched, and all food supplies inspected by health inspectors, under the supervision of the medical health officer. The mortality has been reduced amazingly, and is given by the best medical authority at 7 per thousand in 1899, and 5.42 per thousand in 1902. Private hospitals have been closed, or are practically empty. The number of physicians has been reduced by half, while insurance companies compete for life business."

In a splendid article by J. H. MacArthur, M. D., of Dawson, published in the special edition of the Yukon Sun, this subject is extensively treated and the following appears:

"The death rates are extremely low for any community, as the average death rate per thousand, living among general communities, ranges from 16 to 20, or in large cities may run as high as 30. The lowering of the death rate and almost the entire disappearance of scurvy and enteric fever is a marked indication of the increased health of the community."

The climate of Dawson is not so bad as it has been painted. During the winter months, it is true, the thermometer often drops as low as 50 degrees, but it is for a few days only.

The popular notion that the winters in and around Dawson are one continual night, with no ray of light to guide the traveler, is erroneous and absurd. It is true that the sun fails to show its face at all for several weeks, and only for an hour or so during the months of December and January. But the moon seems to work overtime, and the beautiful star light nights, and the indescribable aurora borealis help to light up the nights, and their reflection upon the snow enshrouded land makes the nights there even lighter than in other communities on the outside. During the winter there is no rain, of course, few snow storms, very little wind, and clouds seldom obscure the sky. Men work out on the coldest days, and long trips are undertaken at all seasons of the year, regardless of weather conditions.

The summer climate of Dawson is equal to any place in the world. Even the proverbial mosquito is conspicuous in Dawson by his absence. There is almost continual sunshine, no oppressive heat, and the birds, butterflys and bumble bees flit about as they do in any other clime. As a matter of fact there are five months of the year at Dawson that are all that could be desired; equable, balmy and exhilarating.

The ice generally breaks in the river early in May and closes again about the middle of October. The altitude of Dawson is about 1,000 feet.

POPULATION.

The great rush to the Klondike reached its high-water mark in the summer of 1898, at which time, from such crude information as the Northwest Mounted Police could gather from the fleet of scows coming down the river, it was estimated that fully 50,000 people were landed at Dawson and camped at the mouth of the Klondike. Fully 40,000 of these never had any business there or in that country, and, failing to find the expected manna of the wilderness falling into their open mouths, and discouraged and lacking in the resourceful qualities essential to such a pioneer life, they soon drifted back out of the country. Long before the winter of 1898-9 had closed the Yukon River, the majority of this "cold-footed" contingent had returned to the states, rich in experience and full of hard-luck stories. The more hardy ones who remained were soon scattered along the outlying creeks, or engaged in business in the city, and Dawson during that winter settled down to hard, practical work, which bore rich fruit, as witnessed by the output of the following summer. During the open season of 1899 Dawson lost a large number of its floating population by reason of the Nome excitement, leaving a permanent population, when the winter of 1899-1900 set in, variously estimated at between 5,000 and 6,000. The present population of Dawson is now in the neighborhood of 7,000.

DAWSON OFFICIALS.

1901-02

During the winter of ~~1899-1900~~ Dawson became an incorporated city and elected the following gentlemen to serve as its first officials:

Mayor, Henry Macaulay; aldermen, Horace C. Norquay, James F. McDonald, Thomas Adair, George Murphy, Peter Vachon, Thomas G. Wilson.

TERRITORIAL COURT AT DAWSON.

The judicial as well as the executive branches of the government at Dawson are far and away above suspicion. "No political pull" or financial consideration can ever sway these men, and the breaker of laws is promptly punished. There is no delay. The man or woman who commits a crime is almost as certain to be apprehended by the vigilant police, and if found guilty, but few days elapse before the punishment is meted out.

These facts may have had some effect in making Dawson such a peaceful camp. Bad men grew suddenly good there. "Gun fighters" put away their arsenals and became law-abiding citizens, and the sight of a few prisoners sawing wood in all kinds of weather, with a husky, well-armed guard near by, put a wholesome fear in the hearts of those not law-abiding by nature, and thought of the "wood pile" prevented many a petty crime.

MOUNTED POLICE HEADQUARTERS AT DAWSON.

The Canadian mounted police are today one of the finest bodies of men in the world. They are polite, educated, obliging, and at the same time firm and utterly fearless in the discharge of their duty.

For perfect safety to life and property, immunity from great crimes and the general excellence of its law and order regulations, no mining camp in the world has ever equalled Dawson. Even during the summer of 1898, when over 50,000 men of all nationalities and shades of honesty were herded on the banks of the Yukon, irresolute of purpose and ready for any excess as the result of disappointed hopes, the subtle influence of the magical word "Northwest Mounted Police" was enough to check any tendency to overt acts. The power for good of this fine body of men has always been a source of wonder to the thinking class. They have been a guarantee of safety to the law abiding alien from the moment he crossed the boundary line on the summit of the White Pass, while they have been a source of constant menace to the criminal classes, whose wholesome dread of swift Canadian justice caused them to seek safety on territory less rigidly policed than the Yukon. No municipality in Canada or in the states, of like population with Dawson, possesses so few criminals.

Strict military discipline governs the movements of the N. W. M. P. Everybody in Dawson had a wholesome dread of the government "wood pile." On Saturday night at 12 o'clock every business place must close its doors and remain closed until Monday morning at 7 o'clock. Officers patrol the streets and enforce all tardy closing. A violation of this order means a heavy fine and a second offense means a revocation of a license. The Sabbath in Dawson is puritanical in its severity. Work of all kinds is strictly prohibited; a man is not even allowed to work on his own cabin. Churches alone are open and the preachers have it all their own way. This makes an ideal Sabbath and compels every man, woman and child to take one day's absolute quiet and rest out of the seven. The rule at first was considered a harsh one, but the beneficial effects of it on the entire community, both morally and physically, were so marked that today even saloon men willingly close on Saturday midnight, glad of the one day's absolute rest so needful to mind and body.

POLICE COURT—DAWSON.

Macaulay, Chas. D.—Police Magistrate.

Blankman, H. G.—Clerk of the Police Court.

Marshall, Sidney—Court Orderly.

Among the many handsome new buildings erected by the government in Dawson the new Post Office, at the corner of Third street and Third avenue ranks the highest. It is an edifice which, from an artistic and architectural standpoint, would readily grace the streets of many municipalities in the largest centers of either Canada or the states. The design of it is the work of Mr. T. W. Fuller, superintendent architect of the Yukon district, and a young man of great promise. The building was designed to accommodate both the post office and telegraph departments, the latter up stairs, and contains every possible modern appliance for the ready handling and prompt distribution of mail matter as soon as received. Postmaster I. J. Hartman is without doubt considered, by Americans in particular, as the most popular of the many popular government officials in Dawson. Aside from his affability he has done more toward bringing order out of chaos in the mail service than any official in the other departments. At present Mr. Hartman is at work endeavoring to secure a free delivery system, both in Dawson and out on the creeks.

Court House, Dawson, Y. T.

The present mail service in and out of Dawson is as perfect as existing conditions and government appropriations well permit. Improvements, however, are looked for this year in the way of newer and shorter trails, and it is expected that by next winter an all overland trail will be mapped out which will insure a weekly and semi-weekly service all winter and do away with the delays occasioned by soft ice and the breaking up of the ice on the river in the spring or when ice is first forming in the fall.

BUILDINGS.

Aside from the erection of dwelling houses there has been some notable public and commercial building in progress, viz.: Court House, Commissioner's Residence, Administration Building, Public School Building.

Last spring one might look up or down or across the Yukon from almost any point on First avenue, but very early this view was shut off by the erection of an uninterrupted row of warehouses the full length of the river front where steamers land. This work was pushed all over the city and a large number of vast warehouses is the result. That portion of Dawson lying over against the Klondike has also been greatly improved, and is thickly built up at present.

STREETS.

Those who laid out the city knew what they were about when they mapped out the broad, commodious thoroughfares dividing them into blocks.

INDUSTRIES OF DAWSON.

The six lumber mills of Dawson represent the leading industry of that section and will continue to do so for a long time to come. Log houses are a thing of the past, and all buildings are now put up the same as in all settled communities, with timbers and lumber. The lumber mills are all kept busy in summer day and night, supplying the demand and many of them have branched out in the higher grade of manufacturing articles out of lumber. For a long time the only furniture in Dawson was of home made manufacture; today there are chair factories, furniture factories, office furniture makers, stair builders and moulding turners, coffin and casket makers and in fact everything in which lumber forms the raw material. Each of these is rapidly developing into a special industry, and all are finding ready markets for their product, not only in Dawson, but on all the creeks, as well as points up and down the Yukon, even down to the American side. Everybody in Dawson has discarded home made furniture and cabins there today are mostly furnished with modern furniture, luxurious in designs and execution, and all manufactured in Dawson.

Administration Building, Dawson, Y. T.

Brick is also coming to the front as a promising industry, and is already recognized as an important factor in the line of building improvements. During 1898 two small brick yards were started near Dawson, one over the hill on the summer trail to Bonanza and the other a few miles up the river opposite Dawson. The opinion then prevailed that cold weather would cause brick walls to expand and burst and that prejudice caused the two yards to prove a temporary failure. During 1899 an experimental brick cold storage warehouse was erected by a company on Third street, between Third and Fourth avenue. The building was given a thorough test in the winter of 1899-1900, with results most satisfactory to the owners. At no time did the walls or brick show any effect of the most intense cold of that winter. There were no breaks, and the building itself was much warmer for cold storage purposes than a log or board building could possibly have been. This encouraged the brick yards to renew their work and bricks were turned out and brought to Dawson in scow load lots. About that time new fire regulations were enforced by the council and as a matter of safety against fires brick or terra cotta chimneys were ordered in all buildings. This gave an impetus to the brick industry and a year ago Mr. W. H. Welch, of Portland, erected the first brick business building, being a handsome four-story block on Second avenue, near Third street, at a cost of about $20,000. It was rented before it was finished at a big figure and since then many more have been projected. Brick making in Dawson two years ago was expensive and the average price at which they were sold was $10 a hundred, or 10 cents a brick. This year, however, prices are expected to be more moderate, perhaps half of that. The Yukon district abounds in fine clay banks, some of them good enough for pottery and the better grade of kiln-burned goods. Several beds have already been secured and another year will see great progress made in these several industries.

Lime is also receiving attention along the Yukon. Several kilns have already been erected, and with a greater demand for bricks the demand for lime must correspondingly increase. Immense ledges of lime rock are to be found both up and down the Yukon.

FREE ICE WATER ALL SUMMER.

Free ice water all summer, of the purest crystal clearness and from inexhaustible springs, is one of the many luxuries enjoyed in Dawson, and one not paralleled in any other part of the world. It is safe to say that several fortunes have already been sunk by various enterprising men in an endeavor to give Dawson plenty of pure drinking water and to insure it from freezing with the thermometer among the fifties below for weeks and months at a time. After many trials and experiments a system was put in operation last year and given a successful test during the winter just ended which proved to be the coldest on record in Dawson; the water at no time freezing in any part of the system. The service has been piped along all the principal streets of the town, with residence portion included, thus doing away with the old style of melting snow and ice. This last winter was the first in the history of Dawson when the citizens were not called upon to cut and sled away big chunks of ice out of the Yukon, and piling them alongside their cabin doors like cord wood for melting purposes when wanted. Today every housewife boasts of hot and cold water spigots, with bath room attached, together with an unlimited supply of the vital part of life on the Klondike, and at a nominal cost.

DAWSON A METROPOLIS.

Dawson today is no longer the isolated place it was two years ago. The rapid steamer service to Skagway, the railroad to White Horse and the fast river steamers have brought Dawson in close touch with the outer world, so that it is now possible to make the trip from Seattle to Dawson in the short period of one week. This service is yearly being improved on and the prediction is already made that the trip will eventually be made in five days even before the coming summer is over.

The freight traffic of Dawson has reached a colossal proportion that has compelled all the large commercial companies in there to erect special warehouses along the water front in order to give room to the large shipments going in there with the opening of navigation. These immense structures now line the water front of Dawson for the distance of a mile, and for size and capacity they will readily do credit to the largest shipping center on the Pacific coast. Millions of dollars are invested in these properties by their respective companies, with millions more represented in merchandise. Should Dawson ever be suddenly cut off from civilization she would have provisions enough within her gates to supply the wants of all her people for several years to come.

Every steamboat company now owns its own wharf, warehouse and float or barge. Passengers now find luxuries as well as comforts at every point of the route, and a journey to Dawson has now been exalted to one of the noted pleasure tours of the world.

IN TOUCH WITH THE WORLD.

The construction of the government telegraph line from Bennett to Dawson during the spring and summer of 1899, and the completion of the line to Ashcroft, places Dawson in daily touch with every section of the civilized world. This will enable every resident not only to read the news of the world with his breakfast, but will enable merchants to order goods by wire and save from one to two weeks over former loss of time.

The telegraph tolls between Dawson and Bennett and Skagway are not heavy, considering the cost of construction and the difficulties and expenses in keeping so many hundred miles of wire open and in repair after heavy storms.

KLONDIKE OPEN TO ALL NATIONS.

Obnoxious rules and regulations created by the government tended to give the Klondike a temporary black eye two years ago and drive many aliens out of the country, the fact remained that the mining laws of Canada, in their general application, were more liberal and conducive to immigration than those on the American side. On the Yukon anybody can secure a mining location irrespective of nationality. These beneficent laws, however, were blocked by local regulations that for awhile made mining practically prohibitive. All offensive measures have now been removed and today the Yukon territory is thrown open to everybody and encouragement given to every man who honestly seeks to prospect and secure a footing on a piece of ground. Americans, under the present liberal and honest administration of the affairs of the Yukon, receive the same treatment and kindly consideration as do the British subjects, and no distinction is made when it comes to locating or recording. Lord Minto's visit had much to do with calling the attention of the Ottawa government to the many evils existing on the Yukon that were fast depopulating the country. Today the government at Ottawa keeps in close touch with Dawson and equitable treatment is given to everybody, whether alien or British subject.

THE DAWSON OF TODAY.

To divide the history of Dawson into parts, it may be said that the time previous to last year was the primary stage, and that last year the writing was placed upon the wall which foretold of the present prosperity so noticeable to all.

Not until the river carried away its winter's accumulation of ice last spring did the present modern city become a tangible fact noticeable to resident and visitor alike. When the freight which had been ordered during the winter previous from almost every known quarter of the globe, began pouring in by the earliest boats, and this merchandise, building material, furnishings and what not was distributed so that its presence was known and consequent influences felt, people began to awaken to the fact that Dawson was no longer a mere mining camp, but that it had assumed its proper place of dignity and importance, and had passed at a stride from a small and crude town, the temporary stopping place for miner and prospector en route to the scene of actual mining or possible fresh discoveries, to the position of a great commercial and social center. With the first two sections of Dawson's history the present sketch has little to do, otherwise than by comparison, as that has long since been given to publication, and the Dawson of former times, although it must ever be lovingly remembered by those who knew it, and which as it recedes farther and farther from us with the tearing down of each old land mark, and takes to itself new and ever varying aspects as it passes from all but the treasure house of memory, is by no means the Dawson of today.

Dawson is no longer a mere mining camp. It is a modern city. Let anyone who doubts this statement look down any of Dawson's principal streets, and "looking backward" a brief year or two compare the past and the present. This done let him scan the faces of those he meets and be convinced that with the passing of the mining camp goes also the pioneer. This done, if he has the quality of reverence at all developed, he will, mentally at least, uncover while the two pass together to an honored place in history.

IMPROVEMENTS.

In referring to the multitude of improvements which are not only seen but felt by every sense, it is difficult to know just where to begin or what to say, for the reason that the original is so fast passing from our ken, and one in looking at the improvements in the city as a whole, is apt to confound the improvement with the improved.

Where once the city lay in a mirey bog, it now rests upon a solid foundation—the product of immense labor and expense. The nights of our present are electrically lighted and as bright as they are in any modern city.

PUBLIC LIBRARY.

The Free Public Library and Reading Room has been in the past, and will no doubt continue to be in the future, one of the greatest marks of improvements and public advancement in the city. The library is well stocked with standard and contemporaneous works of fiction, history, religion and reference, to say nothing of the files of newspapers, magazines and other current literature. The room is always open to the public, and has proved a source of pleasure and benefit to a vast number of people to whom reading might otherwise have been almost an impossibility.

CHURCHES.

To the watchfulness and care of the Christian churches is due the fact that no place is ever allowed to remain long without Christian teaching, and Dawson has been far from neglected in this matter, as five churches have been established, the Roman Catholic, Episcopal, Angelican, Presbyterian and Methodist, besides the Salvation Army.

CHURCH DIRECTORY.

Church of England, cor. Mission and First ave., Rev. Naylor, rector.

Catholic (St. Mary's), First ave. North, Rev. Father Gendreau.

Presbyterian (St. Andrew's), Mission st., Rev. Grant.

Methodist, Mission st., Rev. Hetherington.

HOSPITALS.

Of these praiseworthy and necessary institutions there are two, known as the Good Samaritan and St. Mary's hospitals.

These institutions are situated one at the north end and the other at the south end of the city, and have been from the time of their founding, of incalculable benefit to the public, making possible the successful treatment of many difficult cases which would, of necessity under less favorable circumstances, have resulted in fatalities.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

According to the report of the principal, Mr. G. P. McKenzie, made June 30th at the close of the year, the number of pupils enrolled was 175, with an average attendance, not including the kindergarten, of 91.5. The percentage present was 76. During the winter the average attendance was high with the exception of the month of January, when the extremely cold weather lowered the average to 68. During the months of May and June the attendance was smaller, but that is accounted for by so many children leaving the city for the outside.

Public School, Dawson, Y. T.

Continuing the report says: The course of study followed has been as far as circumstances would permit, that of the Northwest territories and the school has been graded along those lines. Great difficulty has been experienced in this regard, the pupils coming, as they do, from many different provinces and states and each having a different standard of graduation. The work of the different standards is divided as follows: Primary department, standard one, divided into three classes; intermediate department, standards two and three; advanced department, four and five, and there is also a class taking the first year's work in the high school.

NEWSPAPERS.

The city has three daily newspapers, one semi-weekly, one weekly and one monthly.

DAWSON'S CUSTOM HOUSE.

The volume of business transacted through the local custom house in the course of a year places Dawson well up in the list of important Canadian ports of entry.

Considering the comparatively small population of the town and the adjoining mining districts which Dawson supplies the figures total up to an amount which is really remarkable.

The fact that importations are so heavy may be attributed to several causes. The population both of the town and the creeks is largely made up of American citizens, the mercantile business of Dawson being principally in their hands. This condition has operated largely in favor of the importation of American goods.

In addition to this fact it must be noted that the coast cities of the United States have made particular efforts to secure the trade of Dawson with no small degree of success.

Vancouver and Victoria are now awakening to the opportunity which is before them in the Yukon territory and little by little the trade is being diverted toward those cities.

The superior shipping facilities which the cities on the other side of the line possess has given them thus far a marked advantage over their Canadian rivals.

SOCIAL.

There are three dancing clubs as permanent organizations, and with each of these giving a party once a week, there is no lack of opportunity to dance. Then there are the athletic clubs, and teams organized for the various sports, a score of individual projects for social entertainments during the winter, besides the clubs which are up to an exceedingly high standard. When, added to these things one numbers the churches the Free Public Library concerts, and the evenings sure to be spent in private social intercourse (for Dawson has its entertainers—none better), the social possibilities of the city assume rather imposing proportions.

DOUGLAS CITY, ALASKA.

Directly across the Gastineau Straits from Juneau is Douglas Island, where is situated the celebrated Treadwell mine, and spreading out along the rising ground from the mine worked is the town of Douglas City.

It is not quite so large as Juneau, but contains good hotels, large mercantile establishments and of course the ever-present saloons and dance houses that go to make up a mining camp. Many natives are employed in the Treadwell Island mine at good wages, and the Indian village there is large and prosperous. The permanency of Douglas City is assured, although its growth will probably not be phenomenal.

The Treadwell mine is located almost in the heart of Douglas City, and is one of the largest in the world.

Although the rock from which the gold is extracted is of very low grade there is an immense mountain of it that will run the gigantic plant for years.

DUTCH HARBOR, ALASKA.

From Unga to Unalaska and Dutch Harbor it is 272 miles. This is the coaling station for the steamers on the route to St. Michael and Nome. These places are far out on the chain of the Aleutian Islands. The surrounding hills are rich in both gold and silver. There is a large lake of sulphur within its borders, from which loud reports issue at intervals like the boom of a cannon. The harbor there is a beautiful land-locked sheet of water capable of holding all of the vessels ever likely to be in the neighborhood.

Few people appreciate the fact that Unalaska Island is farther west than Honolulu. There are two towns there, the ancient Russian town of Unalaska and the newer place known as Dutch Harbor. They are about one mile apart. In the old town the Russian Church lifts its minarets as the most notable structure in the village. The Russian language is still spoken by the active little Aleuts—who seem part Eskimo and part Japanese—and by the older Indians and many of the white settlers.

Good Things
To Eat

The Island was discovered September 4, 1741, in the days of Peter the Great, and was settled nearly forty years before Cook dropped anchor in the harbor. It is the headquarters of the Alaska Commercial Company, who have been established there ever since the United States purchased Alaska, engaged in buying furs, ivory and curios, and generally trading with the natives. It was this company that formerly enjoyed the sole right to kill the fur seal on the Pribiloff Islands.

This valuable prerogative is now held by the North American Commercial Company, whose headquarters are at Dutch Harbor.

From here the traveler skirts Nunivik Island, which was formerly a menace to navigators, and enters the shallow Bering Sea. Passing between St. Mathew and Hall Islands, frigid St. Lawrence comes into view. On this island there is a government school and mission.

Here the traveler, if it be early in the season, will get a view and an experience of floe ice, and realize that he is in Arctic latitudes. Though there is no danger, the onlooker will be given an idea of the tremendous ice force which has carried many a luckless whaler into the White Unknown.

FORT YUKON.

Fort Yukon is situated on the north bank of the Yukon, about 385 miles below Dawson and ten miles above the mouth of the Porcupine River, just within the Arctic circle. In the early days the Hudson Bay Company had a trading post here, but the buildings were burned by the Indians many years ago and the post abandoned. In later years the large commercial companies have erected buildings, and often are obliged to land large amounts of freight there temporarily on account of the low water in the river.

TEN YEARS IN THIS BUSINESS IN SEATTLE

FORTY MILE, Y. T.

Forty Mile is situated at the junction of the Forty Mile and Yukon Rivers, 63 miles below Dawson, and 1,542 miles from St. Michael. It was the principal settlement in the gold fields subsequent to the stampede to Dawson. This is the supply point for the mines on Miller, Chicken, Glacier, Jack Wade, Bed Rock and other creeks in the district which are in part in the American territory, though largely under Canadian laws and duties. Forty Mile creek took its name from being about forty miles from old Fort Reliance.

A mile above the town is situated the mission of the church of England, in charge of Bishop William Bunpas, who established it in 1892.

On the opposite side of Forty Mile Creek, facing the Yukon, is located fort Constantine, the headquarters of the Northwest Mounted Police. A quarter of a mile further north fronting on the Yukon, is Fort Cudahy, the headquarters of the North American Transportation & Trading Company. The town of Forty Mile is in the Yukon Territory, but up to

GANDOLFO Is the Pioneer Fruit Merchant in Dawson

1896 it was supposed to be in Alaska, and the miners living there organized their mining districts and made their own laws as is customary in American mining communities.

HAINES.

HAINES, a postoffice and settlement on Lynn canal, fifteen miles from Skaguay, the nearest banking point. It has two hotels and one church, has steamboat communications with Fort Wrangel, Juneau, Sitka and Skaguay, Alaska, and Seattle, Washington. Is finely located and has a good deep-water harbor, a good wharf and a population of about 400, including natives. It was first settled in 1878 by George Dickinson, fur trader, and has always been a favorite resort for the native Alaskans.

It of course has no municipal form of government and the U. S. Commissioner stationed there is Sol Ripinsky. It has a postoffice, with W. B. Stout as postmaster, and was formerly the starting point for the Dalton trail.

HOMER.

Located on Cook's Inlet, 132 miles from Nuchek. Has post office and trading station. Juneau nearest banking point. Col. S. T. Penberthy, customs collector.

KARLUK, ALASKA.

A distance of ninety miles intervenes between Kodiak and Karluk, which is the greatest salmon fishing station in the world. Two-thirds of the entire salmon pack from Alaskan waters comes from the Karluk River. The river is 16 miles long, from 100 to 600 feet wide and less than six feet deep. These figures give the dimensions of the solid mass of salmon that used to ascend the Karluk to a mountain lake before canners came with traps and d Gill nets. A single haul of the seine has beached at least 60,000 salmon.

There is much agricultural land in the vicinity, and cattle graze there the year around, the thermometer never recording zero and the snow laying upon the ground but a short time.

The Alaska Commercial Company has a trading station located here, with J. G. Kopp as agent.

The Pacific Packing and Navigation Co. have a cannery located here.

KETCHIKAN is located on Evillagigedo island at the southern end of Tongass Narrows, has one church, two hotels, two sawmills, one cannery and one newspaper. Is an incorporated town, has United States customs office, express office, nearest banking point Juneau, Alaska.

Ketchikan is now enjoying a healthy boom—not an inflation from temporary causes, but a substantial growth that will be lasting. Good wharves and substantial buildings are a feature of the place. Miss B. V. Baird, postmistress.

The Northern Commercial Co. have a trading station here in charge of Peter Kokrine.

KOYUKUK

Is the name of a river emptying into the Yukon from the right bank near Nulato. The name "Koyukuk" is now associated with the mining district located on the Koyukuk River about 715 miles from its mouth. Bettles, the largest town and trading post, is located about 665 miles up the river and is the head of navigation for the large steamers. Light draft vessels can run as far as Cold Foot, a distance of 18 miles from Beetles.

Cold Foot is the supply station for the mining camps located on Alder, Clara, Emma, Gold, Gold Bench, Hammond, Hungarian, Myrtle, Rosy, Slate, Swift, Twelve-Mile, Union Gulch and Vermont Creeks. Goods are taken by small polling boats from Cold Foot to the different camps. There are two ways of reaching these camps; one is by steamboat up the Koyukuk during the open season the other is the winter route overland from Skagway, via the White Pass & Yukon railway and stage line to Dawson, and from there by dog team via Fort Yukon, the Chandalar river over the ice. It is about 250 miles from Fort Yukon to the nearest camps on Slate Creek.

The Koyukuk district has now been pretty thoroughly prospected and is recognized as one of the best camps in American territory, the gold assaying $19 to the ounce. The gold is very coarse, one nugget weighing $600 being found on Union Gulch by Mr. Tom Gillespie.

Bettles City has three saloons, one restaurant and the Northern Commercial Co.'s trading station in charge of Mr. Charles Grimm. The U. S. Commissioner at Cold Foot is Mr. Donald McKenzie. Prominent among the mining men in the district is Gordon C. Bettles, Frank and George Gates, Frank

METLAKAHTLA.

Metlakahtla, a postoffice, located 260 miles east of Juneau, on Annette Island, is a point of great interest. Many years ago the Rev. Duncan had an Indian mission in the territory of Canada, but here he was persecuted, and so he obtained from Congress permission to move his flock to this little island. There he has educated the Indians and made them self-supporting. He has a large cannery in operation, a sawmill and other industries, all carried on by the Indians he has educated. Annette Island is rich in minerals, but by the terms of the concession to the venerable pastor no white men may settle on it, as he fears the contamination of his people from such intercourse as would follow.

NOME.

NOME, formerly called Anvil City, the scene of a great mining stampede in 1898 and 1899, is situated on Norton Sound, between the Nome and Snake Rivers, about 125 miles northwest of St. Michael. It is the metropolis of the north coast of Alaska, and the famous Cape Nome mining district. It has many buildings that would be a credit to larger and older settlements. A fine water system is in operation, the water being taken from a mountain stream five miles distant. Modern fire apparatus and a good fire department protects the city from fire. It has electric lights, telephone service, and is connected with St. Michael by telegraph and with the mines of Anvil Creek by a narrow-gauge railroad and telephone line. It has the usual complement of general merchandise stores, hotels, restaurants, saloons, etc., found in a prosperous mining town of its size; three banks, three newspapers, 3 churches and schools, 8 fraternal orders, Ancient Order of United Workmen, Anvil Masonic Club, Arctic

At Nulato, to which the Koyukuk river pays tribute, will be found an ancient Russian post and a well-established Catholic Mission. In 1838 one Malakof ascended the Yukon to Uulato and there built a small block house. He was forced to return to St. Michael for supplies, however, and while he was gone the Indians burned the post. In 1842, Lieutenant Zagoskin built a new fort at Nulato and established relations with the Indians. Father S. J. Jetti is in charge of the mission here. PORT SAFETY, ALASKA.

About thirty miles up the coast from Bluff City and some twenty-five miles below Nome is situated the town of Port Safety. The town was laid out, surveyed and platted by Charles Garside, a United States surveyor, in the winter of 1899 and has, unlike most mining camps, wide regular streets and evenly divided lots and blocks. It is located on a narrow spit of high sand bar at the mouth of the Port Safety lagoon. This lagoon is about twenty-five miles long and six miles wide, having a narrow entrance near the town. The water is quite shallow, but schooners and steamers of light draft often seek shelter there from storms. There are four large rivers emptying into the lagoon and several small streams; these rivers are commonly known as the Solomon, Bonanza, Eldorado and Flambeau Rivers. Each of them have many tributaries and all are supposed to be gold-bearing in more or less degree. The best paying small streams in the district are Shovel Creek, Big Hurrah and Venetia. The town contains several prosperous hotels and most of the large mercantile companies doing business on the coast have a branch there.

RAMPART CITY.

RAMPART CITY (Minook Creek), is located on the left bank of the Yukon River, 630 miles from Dawson, and 975 miles from St. Michael. Is the supply station for Big Minook mining district, also the Eureka mining district across the divide, twenty-eight miles from Rampart. Has many very

RUSSIAN MISSION, ALASKA.

The Russian Mission the next station below the Holy Cross, is a picturesque and beautiful spot. The water in the river at this point has been sounded to a depth of 480 feet, indicating that it flows through an ancient crater. The mission has been established many years and is the principal station of the Greek Church in the northern portion of Alaska.

Rev. Father Orloff is in charge.

The Northern Commercial Co. has established a trading post here, with Anisem Belkoff in charge.

SKAGWAY, ALASKA.

SKAGWAY is located at the mouth of Skagway River and the head of Lynn Canal, 1,000 miles north of Seattle, and 110 miles northwest of Juneau. It is the southern terminus of the White Pass & Yukon Railway, which run daily trains to White Horse and intermediate points, connecting in summer with steamer lines, and in winter with semi-weekly stage for Dawson and the Klondike. It is the gateway to the gold fields of the Yukon Territory and Alaska. It was settled in 1897, and incorporated in 1900, is governed by a mayor and city council. Has good graded schools, five churches, two hospitals and two banks; one library, two local telephone companies, eight hotels and several large, well established wholesale houses, who supply the miners of the upper Yukon and the Klondike. It is a port of entry. It is connected with Dawson, Atlin and all intermediate points by telegraph. Has four newspapers, namely: Skagway News, Daily Alaskan, Daily Alaska Travelers' Guide, Alaska-Yukon Mining Journal. Wm. B. Simpson, P. M.

mighty Tanana, which is 700 miles long and has many tributaries. The Tanana drains the country lying between the Copper River and the Yukon as far south as the White River, and parallels the Yukon for many miles. Reports of rich strikes are now coming in daily from the Tanana hills, and it is thought by those familiar with the country that it will prove one of the greatest gold-producing regions on the Yukon. Little is known of the river however, as thousands of miles adjacent to it have never known the foot of a white man. There is a military post located here called Fort Gibbon.

White Horse

WHITE HORSE, YUKON TERRITORY.

Terminus of the White Pass & Yukon Railway.

White Horse is the Yukon terminus of the White Pass & Yukon Railway. It is situated 111 miles from Skaguay, the coast terminus of the railway, and at the head of navigation on the Lower Yukon. Steamers from St. Michael can ascend the river as far as White Horse, but are prevented from going further by the formidable White Horse Rapids, two miles above the town.

This led to the selection of White Horse by the White Pass & Yukon Railway as the terminus of their line. From this point water communication with all points in the valley of the Lower Yukon and its principal tributaries is available.

The Hootalinqua, the Big Salmon, the Pelly, the White, the Stewart, Forty Mile, the Tanana, the Klondike, the Koyukuk, and all other gold-bearing streams tributary to the Yukon can be more readily reached from White Horse than from any other point having transportation connections with the outside world. So also can Dawson, Circle City, Rampart City, St. Michael and Nome.

White Horse is the point of transshipment of freight and passengers for all that vast region known as the valley of the Lower Yukon, having an area in Canada and Alaska combined of fully half a million square miles.

Within a few months this young and thriving town has sprung into existence. It is an ideal location, just this side of the famous White Horse Rapids, with the Yukon River in front and the beautiful mountains as the background. The foothills are thickly wooded and broken here and there with little streams of clear, cold water.

Front street, which faces the river, is a busy scene, two and three-story buildings are under construction, and smaller ones are bobbing up here and there. The railroad warehouses surpass anything in Alaska; they extend 1000 feet along the banks of the river, and are amply able to house the immense quantities of freight which is daily transferred from the cars to the steamers.

hair seal and deer hides. The chief industry is canning and salting fish. On the waters embraced in the Wrangle district are located 11 salmon canneries and 13 salmon salteries, the former canning 400,000 cases, or 19,200,000 pounds of salmon in one season, the salteries supplying 16,000 barrels. To keep up the supply there are three salmon hatcheries, which turn out nine million young salmon annually. Wrangle has one brewery, four general merchandise stores, hotels, saloons, sawmills, etc.

DIRECTORY AND GAZETTEER.

YAKUTAT.

YAKUTAT is situated on Yakutat Bay, about 250 miles north of Juneau; was first settled about 1837. It has steamer connections with Juneau, which is the nearest banking point. It is from this point that Prince Lugi of Savoy started to make his memorable and successful ascent of Mt. St. Elias, 17,000 feet. This is probably the highest mountain in Alaska, and indeed is one of the lofty peaks of the globe.

It is constantly covered with a mantle of ice reaching down almost to the sea level, and arises in pyramid form, straight, regular and massive, to three times the height of Mt. Washington. A feature of this mountain is the Agassiz Glacier, which is estimated to be twenty miles in width, covering an area of 1,000 square miles. On any clear day Mt. St. Elias is visible 160 miles at sea. It is one of the grandest scenic wonders of the world.

The White Pass and Yukon Route

A railroad across the Alaska range of the Rocky Mountains through the White Pass, and connecting the waters of the great Yukon River at White Horse, Yukon Territory, with an outlet at the North Pacific Ocean at Skaguay, Alaska, was one of the most notable achievements of the closing year of the old century, and opens up the brightest pages in the history of Alaska, British Columbia, and the Yukon Territory, as it is one of the chief factors in the development of the treasures of those vast countries. The fabulous riches of the Klondike inspired many with the idea of building a railroad to overcome the difficulties of the various trails, but it was such a stupendous undertaking that the various schemes were practically abandoned, and the coast clear, when Mr. S. H. Graves, who is now President of the road, offered, on the report of Engineer E. C. Hawkins, to supply the capital for its construction. The result is that President Graves' venture has been a success, and the world has been benefited by millions of dollars yearly in the increase of the output of the mines, transportation has been facilitated and the Gold Fields have become a part and parcel of our Western civilization. Where weeks and even months were formerly spent in crossing the divide, it is now but a matter of half a dozen hours. Dawson, the capital of the Yukon, and all other mining districts in the North, can now be reached with comfort and ease either in winter or summer. Fame, honor and financial success then is due President Graves, and those who carried out his work. Many difficulties were met and overcome. Contractor M. J. Heney alone met with difficulties that would have discouraged a less determined man. A great discovery of gold was made at Atlin during the construction, and his whole crew of about 1,200 men, started off on a stampede. It was just one of those things that often happen in a mining camp when a great strike is made. Every man for himself, and away they go, regardless of distance, time, food or anything else. Another thing was the lowering of Lake Lewis. The object was to drain it about three feet and a canal was dug for that purpose, but the result was disastrous; the whole lake washed away from its mountain fastness, and its raging, roaring flood of water rushed down the mountain path, carrying everything before it—ruining work already constructed, tearing away a number of houses with supplies and causing a heavy loss. Some of the engineering difficulties were so great away up on the mountain side that men had to hang on ropes when putting in the first shots to form the ledge for the rails. The cost of construction in many places exceeded a quarter of a million dollars per mile, and vast sums of money were expended, but there was never a moment's thought of turning back from the work undertaken. It was with many such difficulties and at a distance of over a thousand miles from the base of supply, that this great work, the most Northern railway on the Continent, with the grandest scenery on earth, was completed, and opened for traffic in June, 1900, and in connection with which a line of steamers during the open season of navigation, a line of stages in the winter, has formed what is known as the White Pass & Yukon Route.

A TRIP.

over the White Pass & Yukon Route, although very pleasant in the winter season, is still more comfortable in the summer. Leaving Seattle, Washington, Vancouver or Victoria, British Columbia, on one of the many fine steamers that sail between these points, and Skaguay, the run of about 1,000 miles is made in from 3 to 3½ days, and is through the waters of the inland sea. Sailing Northward, one beholds the beauty of the myriad islands on the one hand, the mighty grandeur of the glacier, and the mountains of perpetual snow on the other. Throughout the whole course of this thousand mile trip, the traveler is never out of sight of land, and is in a perfectly safe harbor throughout the whole distance. Arriving at Skaguay, where connections are made with the railroad, is found a city with all modern improvements. It has a good water supply, electric lights, telephone and telegraph systems, schools, churches, clubs and lodges. The railroad trip from there to White Horse is of course the most interesting part of the whole journey. An elevation of 3,000 feet is attained in the first fifteen miles, passing numerous falls, canyons, overhanging cliffs and all the varied scenes for which the road is so famous. Throughout the entire distance to White Horse, there is no lack of scenery and novelty.

White Horse is becoming a great commercial center, and may in time outrival the City of Dawson itself. Great coal and copper properties have been located here, and millions of dollars will be expended in their development. White Horse is also the nearest way to the headwaters of the Big Salmon country. Continuing our journey, we pass on down the river, through fifty miles into Lake La Barge, into Thirty Mile River, until we reach the mouth of the Hootalinqua; from here the river changes from clear crystal to muddy water; passing down the river, which is constantly increasing in volume from numerous feeders, through Five Finger and Rink Rapids; from there to Fort Selkirk, is some of the finest Yukon scenery. Selkirk is an old Hudson Bay Company's trading post, and from there to the sea there is always water enough for navigation. Passing the mouths of the White and Stewart Rivers, we presently arrive at the City of Dawson itself, the center of the world's greatest mining district. Every mile of the river from White Horse to Dawson brings new scenery to view, the banks are fringed with flowers and myriads of birds sing out a welcome from every tree top. Then there is novelty enough too for the most fastidious. "The sun never sets" during a portion of the year, and then again it evens up, by keeping out of sight in the winter, and giving the Aurora Borealis a chance to do its very finest work, which it does by turning the night into day. Aside from all this, there is always the novelty of the placer diggings, the sacks of gold, the great quartz mills, and an endless variety of things that thrill the tourist with enthusiasm.

MILES CANYON, NEAR WHITE HORSE.

The Winter Route

too has many interesting features connected with it, and not in the least uncomfortable. The stages carried many passengers this last winter, and not a single complaint has been heard of any discomfort experienced, which is satisfactory, when we consider that many of those passengers were ladies, and some of them in very delicate health. Most people of course wear furs, and great fur coverings are provided by the Company, who leave nothing wanting for the comfort of the passengers. The White Pass & Yukon Route people have gone to great expense to make this winter road a success, and like all their other undertakings, it's a winner.

The Arctic Winter

has lost much of its terrors since the construction of the White Pass & Yukon Route, and although the climate is rigorous, severe cold comes only in snaps, of from one to three days' duration, and the people of Dawson go about their business with much the same kind States. Sleighing parties are often made up for a drive from Dawson to outside mining points, and with skating, tobogganing, curling and many other winter amusements, winter life in Dawson is very pleasant, while the miner goes about his work with no inconvenience whatever.

THE OUTPUT.

Since the feverish days of '49, no such excitement has been aroused as when the treasure ship "Portland," in 1897, steamed into Seattle. The wild scramble that ensued for a few years has now settled down to a business basis. Placer mining is now carried on scientifically, and thousands of claims have been opened that have brought fortunes to their owners, and scarcely a day passes that does not bring some new "strike," and as yet hardly a scratch has been made in this immense territory. As in any newly developed country, the wealth most easily obtainable was first developed, so placer mining monopolized all the attention. Now, however, quartz ledges, found in different parts of Alaska, have interested capital, and the next few years will show astonishing results.

From the most authentic figures the total yield of gold and silver for 1900, representing the output of Alaska, including Nome and the Klondike, was $29,323,553, of which Alaska produced $7,965,224, and the Klondike, $21,358,329. The figures for 1899, showing a total of $21,257,247, of which amount Alaska produced $5,000,501, and the Klondike $16,224,746, showing an increase of about 40 per cent. for the year 1900, as compared with 1899.

PLACER MINING IN THE KLONDIKE.

At the close of navigation in the fall of 1901, the official returns from the Gold Commissioner's office at Dawson, showed a record of $24,000,000 as coming from the Klondike last season, which is over two and one-half millions over the previous year. New districts are constantly being opened up, and each succeeding year is sure to vastly increase the ratio.

NEW DISCOVERIES:—Big Salmon Country.

Among the new mining districts in the Yukon, more interest has been taken this last winter probably in the Big Salmon country, and more discoveries have been made there than in any one other place. It might be well to mention here a report received from Mr. F. R. Carpenter, to Mr. J. Francis Lee, which speaks for itself as regards that District. His letter is dated, "Big Salmon, January 9th, 1902," and is as follows:

J. Francis Lee, Esq., Traffic Manager White Pass & Yukon Route:

"When I saw you late last fall I had just returned from the Big Salmon, and according to promise, I will give you a description of that district to enable you to advertise it. I give you the facts and you can use them as much as you wish to.

"I have just returned from there again and you will remember that I bought forty acres of government land last fall, laid out a town and called it Commercial Center. I have been building some houses there.

"There are at present two hotels, two saloons, two stores, one restaurant, ten cabins for families, two large barns for the pack horses, one laundry and several other buildings going up.

"The landing that I spoke to you and Mr. Darling about, four miles below Mason's landing, I have established, and called it Eureka Landing. I am building an hotel 48x60, which will accommodate fifty people, have saloon license granted. I will also build the wharf and warehouse as I agreed with you and Mr. Darling and give it to your Company free as long as you will land your boats there. You in return to advertise the place in your folders and N. P. ads, a regular boat to Eureka Landing as long as the business warrants, and I believe you will have business for two boats like the Bailey and Zealander.

"The new landing will cut off five miles of the old trail, making only ten miles from Eureka Landing to Commercial Center, and twelve miles to Livingston Creek. Eureka will be about twenty-eight miles above Hootalinqua Post, on the Hootalinqua River. There are about a hundred men working in the district and about fifty of them are miners, all working at prospecting the hillsides and benches. As I told you last fall, the gold all comes in from the hills and the winter's work has proven that conclusively.

"We have run three tunnels in the hillside on Moose Creek, 300 feet above creek and have got big pay, getting pans that run as high as $25.00, and many running from three to eight dollars. Four men are sinking a hole on the hill above Livingston—are thirty feet down, and have struck pay running from forty to eight-five cents to the pan. They believe it is about fifty feet to bed rock.

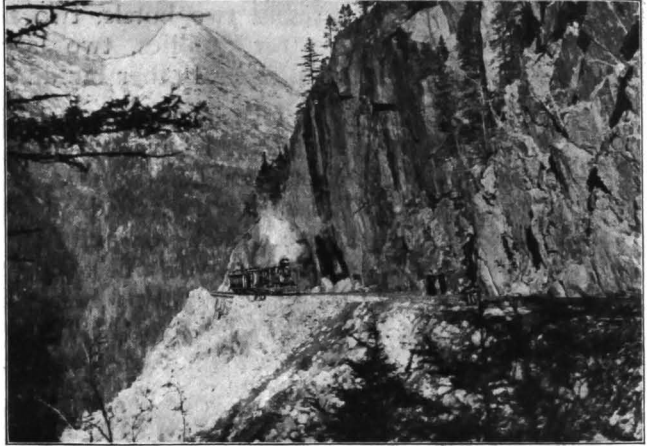

"The tunnels on Summit Creek are equally as good, and Lake Creek is turning out far better than was expected. Six men are working on the rim and taking out $25.00 to the man. Little Violet is at the front, on which there are eight men at work, all making good money.

"May Creek is a new discovery and work done so far shows up well, four men working with rockers and making $15.00 to $20.00 per day. They are also running a tunnel. There is no one working on Cotton Eva this winter, but she showed up well last fall.

"There is no work being done on Silva at present, but there will be two hydraulics go in on her in the early spring.

"Good prospects were found on Fish Creek last fall, ten miles from the mouth, it was late, however, and no work was done on her this winter. Bear Creek, forty miles from Commercial Center, up the South Fork of the Big Salmon, was showing up well, nine men working by last report, and taking out good money. There have been several new creeks discovered this winter, as we have had a fine winter for prospecting, weather mild with very little snow, two inches is about all we have had, and eight below zero is the coldest, and you can see we were favored in that respect.

ROCKY POINT WHITE PASS AND YUKON ROUTE.

"Men are working on St. Germain, getting out lumber for flumes and are preparing to put in an hydraulic plant in the spring. There will be at least twenty-five hydraulic plants go in there in the early spring.

"After this winter the Big Salmon will be a winter digging for it has been thoroughly proven that it will pay to work the hillsides in winter. The camp is in a flourishing condition, everyone having plenty of money, that is gold dust, not much dust either, for it is all very coarse gold and nuggets.

"Prices are reasonable here, meals $1.50, beds $1.00, and provisions White Horse prices, 15 cents added for packing.

"I expect to see three thousand people in the diggings before July 1st, for it is the best country for prospecting in the North today. The gold bearing belt runs at least eighty miles east, and no end to it south, and north there are hundreds of creeks that have never been prospected.

"You will remember me as foreman on the building on the addition to the Commissary of the B. Y. N. Company. You have my consent to publish any part or all of this letter in any paper you see fit.

"Very respectfully yours,

(Signed)

"F. R. CARPENTER,"

Favorable reports on the same district have also been received from Mr. C. C. Runner, who also forwards a sketch of the mining districts, as shown. Mr. Runner says in part:

"After one year of prospecting and developing mines in the Big Salmon Country, I am satisfied that it is one of the best points in the Northwest to get quick returns on money invested in intelligent and legitimate mining.

"I find that on any creek so far discovered, and where work has been done in a miner-like manner, good results have been obtained; and in seventy-five per cent. of such cases pay has been discovered, making a remarkable showing. The district opened last year comprises about nine square miles of area, containing six creeks, three of which are in pay, one of them being the Bonanza; all of them showing well where work has been done in a miner-like manner. The great majority of claims are held by speculators, who have hopes of selling without labor, which is the dream of the average prospector. Livingston Creek seems to be the best producer, but it has the advantage of having had the most work performed on it. Discovery Claim on Livingston last year produced about $70,000.00; other properties about $30,000.00. Discovery on Lake Creek last year produced about $8,000.00, the actual production being hard to obtain, as one man worked for about two months after discovering gold, and a proper accounting was never made until interests were consolidated. The balance of work on Lake Creek was done below Discovery, and the product will probably amount to $10,000.00, distributed between three claims, from one to two owners working each claim with generally one length of sluice box simply to open ground.

"Lake Creek cannot be worked above Discovery without a bed-rock drain as ground gets deep, and all attempts to reach bedrock have so far failed. Discovery on Lake Creek holds the key to the situation, as the drain can be carried from Discovery and work all ground above.

Summit Creek produced about $30,000.00, being worked about one month during the year. These three creeks run parallel, heading on a bald mountain called the "Dome," very similar to Gold Hill and French Hill in Dawson. The gold is very coarse, and of fine quality. I obtained at the San Francisco Mint, $17.85 per ounce gross for gold sold this fall taken from Discovery on Lake Creek.

"The gold is found in pay streaks in creek bottoms and on North limits as high as 150 feet above the creek bed. This is shown on Livingston Creek, the only creek on which the limits are being worked. Lake Creek limits have never been touched as yet; they will be looked after this season.

"It is variously estimated that the three creeks next year will produce in the neighborhood of $500,000.00, as the A. C. Company, of Dawson, have purchased ten claims and are putting in hydraulic plants to greatly increase the output. I am creditably informed that they are now moving in their machinery over the snow."

THE COUNTRY UN EXPLORED

For a distance of eighty miles up the Hootalinqua River there are just as good indications (in fact better, in my opinion) than on Lake Creek. About thirty miles above Mason's Landing there are numerous bars in the River that pay from $8.00 to $12.00 per day to the man. These bars are renewed yearly, showing that the gold comes from some source above, the gold being brought down by the spring floods. Last year I sent a reliable man up the river with orders to prospect the mouths of all creeks as long as his supplies lasted. He remained about three weeks, and found good prospects on all streams he examined. On the Indian River very good prospects were found, so good that he located on the creek, but he had not supplies enough to remain. This is the great difficulty in prospecting Alaska, one has to pack one's supplies on his back to successfully run over the country, and a man has a great burden in thirty pounds. The gold found was coarse and round, just like the gold on Lake and Livingston Creeks, and of the same fineness, which satisfies me that the same channel enriched all the country within the radius I have named.

The Hootalinqua River is navigable to the head of Lake Teslin, and for quite a distance up some of the tributaries that empty into the lake. This I learned from the Indians. Now what the country needs is a supply point, at about the point I have designated on map enclosed.

The White Pass & Yukon Railroad Company agree to keep a boat on the Hootalinqua this summer to carry freight and passengers to any point where landings can be made, and there will be hundreds of prospectors to take advantage of this easy access to the country. It requires capital to penetrate to remote points in Alaska. An individual is almost helpless until capital sends steamers with supplies and puts those supplies in the hands of the laborer in easy access to his work.

There are both summer and winter workings; and summer work can be done on all the creeks with pick and shovel or with hydraulic plants, the fall of most all the creeks being from 6 to 15 inches in 12 feet. The climate is all that can be asked, as the Hootalinqua River is the last river to freeze, and the first to open in the spring. Open work was commenced in May last year, and continued until November 15th.

Throughout the whole mining region new strikes are being made continually, and the output for this year is expected to be much larger than that of any previous year.

THE OLD DISTRICTS

including Eldorado, Bonanza, Hunker, Gold Hill, etc., are still great producers of the precious metal, and the supply is so far from being exhausted that the present season will see great development in that district.

GREAT Development and Railroad Building.

Among the greatest development in the Klondike during the season of 1902, is the building of a new and independent railroad.

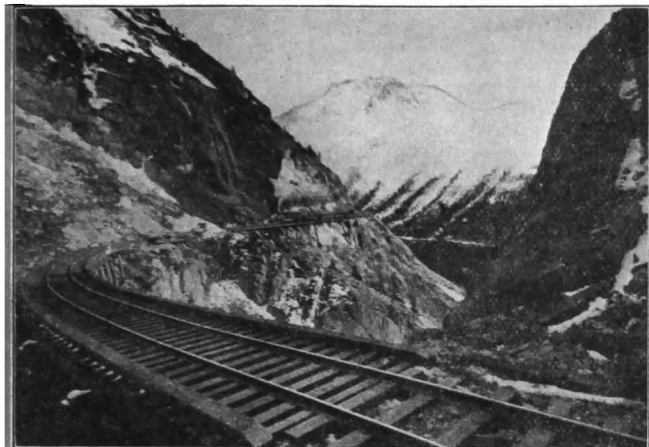

Mr. Hawkins has organized the Hawkins Construction Company, of which he is Chief Engineer and General Manager, and will construct during 1902 about eighty-two miles of narrow gauge road, commencing at Dawson and running to a point on Indian and Stewart Rivers, and which will pass through and connect the center of the entire Klondike Mining District. The principal creeks contributing to the railroad business are the far-famed gold districts of Bonanza, Upper Hunker, Eldorado, Sulphur, Montana, Quartz, Gold Run, Gold Bottom, Dominion, etc., etc.

The line will be built and equipped by the Hawkins Construction Company and then turned over to the Klondike Mines Railway Company as soon as completed, for operation. Other railroads to different mining centers are under advisement, and in a few years Dawson will have many roads leading to the outside mining districts.

In connection with the Klondike Mines Railway, a ferry will be used this season on the Yukon River, between Dawson and West Dawson, so that the building of the road, which is from West Dawson, will make an entrance to the Capital City by this ferry.

spring, and there is more activity apparent than in any season in the past.

MINING MACHINERY.

f all kinds is being rushed forward this

THE GREAT RUSH

of returning miners, business men and newcomers, from Seattle, Vancouver, and Victoria, reminds one of the famous stampede of 1897 and 1898. The S. S. City of Seattle, left B. C. on March 13th, with 315 passengers from Seattle, Washington, and Vancouver, B. C., and boats are leaving daily with many passengers and enormous quantities of freight, in order to get in over the ice before the break-up of the Yukon, as an early opening of the river is anticipated.

The opening of navigation on the Yukon this spring will be witnessed by a greater rush to the gold fields than the most sanguine had expected. Immense quantities of freight are being made ready for shipment, and at all the Puget Sound and Coast cities, the signs are so plain that the dullest may read. The cause of all of this comes from the fact that the stability of the camps has been established beyond a doubt, many new discoveries of placer diggings have been made, free milling quartz and conglomerate is added to the mineral wealth, immense copper belts have been located, coal deposits have been found at White Horse, Five Fingers, the Klondike, and Forty Mile, while rich strikes in many parts of this vast country are of common occurrence.

Not alone is the Dawson camp coming in for all the new life and development of the North this season.

THE KOYUKUK

is now getting to be a very active camp, and many reports of its discoveries have been received during the last winter. Steamers of light draft run from Dawson to this district during the summer season, but most of the travel is during the winter season, and by the way of Dawson.

MANY OTHER NEW DISTRICTS.

have been prospected this last winter, of which no official report has been received, and it is believed that some startling developments will result from some of them this season. The whole vast country is a country of surprises, and the people who know it best are the most sanguine of the great future awaiting it, and the vast hordes of treasures that are still unearthed.

THE PIONEERS OF THE KLONDIKE.

While speaking of the White Pass & Yukon Route and the Company's great work in developing the North, it might be well to mention other companies that have helped to build up this great country, among them is

THE ALASKA PACIFIC EXPRESS COMPANY.

This Company, in connection with the White Pass & Yukon, handles many millions of gold dust every season, from all parts of Alaska and the Yukon Territory, and greatly facilitates the transfer of the precious metal to the outside world.

OTHER COMPANIES,

such as the North American Transportation & Trading Company, the Alaska Commercial Company, and others, have assisted a great deal in the development of the country, and carry large storehouses of merchandise at Dawson and other points, and run steamship lines on the Yukon River to Circle City, St. Michaels, Nome and so on, and make connections with the White Pass & Yukon, at Dawson during the open season of navigation.

THE CANADIAN BANK OF COMMERCE

deserves a prominent place among the pioneer institutions of the country, for its early establishment of Branches at Dawson, Atlin, White Horse and Skaguay, and it may truly be said that the development of the Yukon Territory would not be half what we at present find it, had it not been for the aid extended the miners and merchants of that district, by this strong financial institution.

Mr. H. T. Wills, the Manager of the Dawson Branch, is associated with most of the deserving enterprises of Yukon Territory, and it may safely be said that no financial transaction of any magnitude was consummated without the aid of his Bank. The enormous business transacted by this Bank being largely due to his popularity among the mining and business men, and all other classes of the Yukon.

last year, one-third of the whole amount, or about $8,000,000, was handled by the Canadian Bank of Commerce, through their branch in Dawson. Most of this was sold to the United States government, through the Seattle agency of the Bank, of which Mr. D. A. Cameron is Manager, and was handled by the Alaska Pacific Express Company, and the White Pass & Yukon Route.

Branches of this Bank are established at Victoria and Vancouver, B. C.; Portland, Oregon, and San Francisco, California; and it is through its chain of agencies, extending along the entire coast, from Dawson to San Francisco, that this Bank is able to so successfully handle the business of the merchants and miners of the Pacific Coast and the Yukon District.

DAWSON.

Dawson, the capital of the Yukon Territory, and the center of the gold mining districts of the North, is now a city containing about eight thousand people, of the twenty-two thousand population of the Territory. It has a fine system of water works, a local telephone system, as well as telephonic connections with many of the mining districts. Telegraph communication is established with the outside world. It has churches, representing the Roman Catholic, Presbyterian, Methodist, Church of England religions, besides a Baptist Mission and Salvation Army. It has a new postoffice and a large new building for the officials of the Federal department. The City has a local municipal government of its own, with a Mayor and six Aldermen, the first Mayor being Henry Macaulay. A barracks for the Northwest mounted police is situated here, with a territorial prison in the barracks grounds. It has a large public school, and some private institutions. There are a number of clubs and lodges represented here, as well as theatres and other places of amusement. Dawson, for a mining town, may be called a model city. The Northwest M. P. maintain law and order, so that robberies and hold-ups are of very rare occurrence, and are in most cases severely punished. There is no other city in the world where a man can carry thousands of dollars of gold dust without any risk of robbery; life and properties are safe as in the older settled communities.

ROYALTY.

Royalty has been collected by the Canadian government on gold of $5,000 and over, at the rate of 10 per cent., up to 1900; in 1901 this was reduced to 5 per cent., and there is good reason to believe that the Canadian officials will make a still greater reduction and that the amount will be reduced to 2½ per cent., which will be in the way of an export tax.

CONCESSIONS.

There are large areas of gold producing tracts of country in the far North, where a great deal of capital is required to develop them, and in some of those places concessions have been made to large financial corporations for working the grounds, and there is no doubt but that in the next year or two there will be a great deal of work done and many people employed in handling those properties by hydraulic process.

THE SOURCE OF SUPPLIES FOR THE GOLD FIELDS.

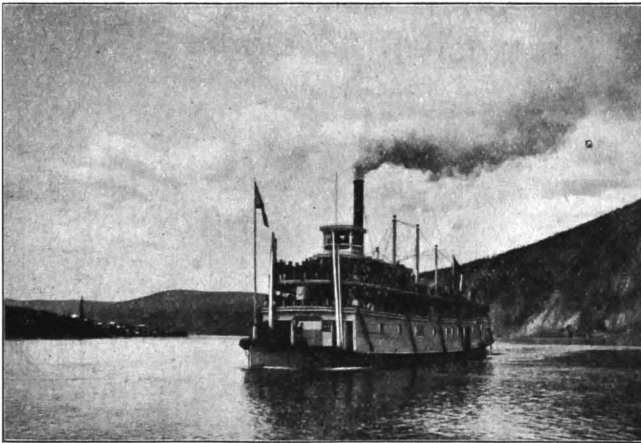

Mining machinery and supplies of all kinds such as are required in a mining district are purchased for the gold fields of the North principally at Seattle, Washington; Vancouver and Victoria, British Columbia, and at those cities representatives of the leading houses of Chicago, San Francisco, New York, Boston, Toronto and Montreal and other Canadian and American cities are to be found, or the goods are handled through agencies in those cities. The commercial and other houses advertising in this volume are among the foremost who do business throughout the North.

RAILWAY CONNECTIONS.

All roads lead to the White Pass & Yukon Route; it has no competing line of railway for the business of the North, and its feeders are the railroads of the country, including the great Trans-continental lines, the Canadian Pacific, Great Northern, Northern Pacific, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and their connecting lines.

MINING LAWS.

In the mining laws of the Yukon Territory your interests are protected. When a claim is once recorded you have a title equal to United States' patent, as long as you comply with the working clause of their laws, viz.: $200 expended every year. There is practically no prejudice shown. All men, whether Canadian or American, are treated alike.

FROM INSPIRATION POINT.

The locator of Discovery claim on any creek is entitled to 1,000 feet by 2,000 feet; two locators can take 1,500 feet by 2,000 feet, and Discovery is exempt from royalty. After discovery has been made all claims thereafter taken are numbered from 1 above and below, and the dimensions allowed are 250 feet up and down the creek by 2,000 feet wide and subject to a royalty of 5 per cent. on gold extracted above $5,000. Each miner must have a miner's license which costs $10.00, and the recording fee for each claim recorded is $15.00. Sworn statement is required yearly as to the amount of gold extracted from each and every claim.

ATLIN, BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Atlin is one day's travel from Skaguay in summer and two days travel in winter. Leaving the W. P. & Y. Railway at Cariboo, there is direct communication to Atlin by the White Pass Company's modern steamers "Gleaner" and "Scotia" and a railway portage of three miles. Atlin is a model mining town in many respects, has an excellent telegraph and mail service. Good permanent government offices, both Provincial and Dominion. Canadian Bank of Commerce and Bank of British North America, both occupy their own premises, and maintain separate assay offices. Several good modern hotels and mercantile houses that carry heavy stocks. A large public school is liberally supported by the government, and there are two churches, Episcopalian and Presbyterian. Roman Catholic services are held in summer. All the professions are well represented. A resident County Court Judge is promised. There is no municipal organization in Atlin, but the affairs of the town and district are well looked after by the Gold Commissioners, and the Atlin District Board of Trade.

The mining outlook is brighter than heretofore. The quartz development is very encouraging. It is confidently expected that a smelter will be built this year at Cariboo, or Taku. Hydraulic operations will be carried on this year on a much larger scale.

Those desiring technical information about the Atlin Mining District may consult Guillam's Geological Survey and Report; R. C. Lowry's articles in "Engineering Mining Journal;" J. H. Brownlee's articles in "Mining and Scientific Press;" and official reports of Minister of Mines. J. H. Brownlee, Provincial Land Surveyor, is fully equipped with reports of all the surveys in the district, and will be pleased to furnish blue prints.

STEAMSHIP CONNECTIONS

with the White Pass & Yukon include the Pacific Coast Steamship Company, the Alaska Steamship Company, the Humboldt Steamship Company. The Canadian Pacific Navigation Company depart from Seattle, Vancouver and Victoria, and boats are leaving and arriving at those ports almost daily throughout the year. For further information regarding sailing dates, reference may be made to the advertisements in this book.

STEAMERS.

THE OPENING OF NAVIGATION ON THE UPPER YUKON

The open season of navigation from White Horse to the Yukon terminal point of the White Pass Railway, to Dawson, varies from one year to another. The opening up in the spring also depends on the season and the condition of the ice. In 1901 the river was open for navigation on the 14th of May, in 1900, on the 17th, and in 1899 it was open on May 20th. The latest season spoken of by the mining men appears to be about the 7th or 8th of June. This spring of 1902, by present appearances looks as if the river would break up very early, and at the time of writing, March 16th, the ice is getting very slushy, and appearances all indicate an early breaking up. The result, however, must be ascertained later and an announcement will be made throughout the country as soon as the river is open for navigation.
