Old Alaskan Campsite
Gives Tip On Path
Followed By First Yank

A 12,000-year-old campsite was found in the Brooks Range about 175 miles southeast of Point Barrow last summer. It held the key, scientists say, to the path man followed in migrating from Asia into North America.

Some careless hunter—or was it
his wife?—left a spearhead behind, among a lot of other stone hardware.
Robert J. Hackman, member of a six-man United States Geological Survey team, found the stuff only 10 inches beneath the surface, in soil that was a moraine left by a retreating glacier,
at the edge of a lake.

The spearhead, incomplete, is one of several found in Alaska in recent years. Not just a spearhead, it's a Folsom point—a particular kind of ancient spearhead.

Radiation Check

For a long time scientists have thought this kind of spearhead was the oldest to be found in North America. The organic matter—charcoal of ancient campfires, principally—found in the bisonae burned for radioactivity and found to be from 7,000 to 12,000 years old. This "Carbon 14" test is a product of the atomic age. It works like this:

When new carbon is being formed in growing things—either plant or animal—it is bombarded as we are today with cosmic rays. These rays turn some of the carbon—which is Carbon 12.01 in the atomic scale—into radioactive carbon, or Carbon is accurately known, so, by merely measuring the amount of radiation from a given amount of carbon, scientists can tell pretty closely how old it is.

Careful checks have been made with artifacts whose age is definitely known—such as old Egyptian caskets, mummies, and so on. And when they turned their super-Geiger counters on Hackman's find, it swung the needle
back into the Stone Age.

Four Victims
Alaskan Crash
Freeze Death

CORDOVA—Four persons froze to death in mid-January and Pilot Bud Richardson narrowly escaped with his life when the Cordova Air Service plane which the latter was flying crashed on a blizzard-swept copper river flats.

The dead were Mr. and Mrs. B. R.
Lyon, Alaskan pioneers, Fred Eamo, another Alaskan pioneer and Ernie Cruz.

Following the crash Pilot Richardson made his passengers as comfortable as possible, then struck out for aid. He had to buck deep snow and water com but many made it to a cabin a miles away. He was near exhaustion and could not make it back to the plane.

The four victims died that night.
Meanwhile another pilot, Stewart
Starouck, with a rescue party including a doctor, made a daring landing near the spot where Richardson had been sighted. As Starouck took off from the isolated spot, a terrific wind caught his plane and carried it backward. It crashed on its back, breaking in two.

He escaped without wreckage,
spent the night in the plane wreckage and then mushed to the cabin where Richardson had taken refuge.

Both pilots were flown back to Cordova in small, rescue planes.

Some members of a ground rescue party, who were flown to a spot several miles from where Richardson's plane crash landed, said conditions were as bad as they had ever seen in the region.

The sub-zero cold was made more intense by strong winds. It took them three hours to hike five miles from the crash scene to the cabin where Richardson was waiting.

The shimmering effect of intensely heated air near the ground, seen on a clear summer day, is termed optical haze.

It is warmer to wear two thin garments than one thick one because the air between them serves as insulation.

wholesome Diet".

U. S. Firm Thinks Anchorage Closest Place To Ottawa

By Austin F. Cross
(Reprinted from Ottawa Citizen)

You will be surprised to know that Anchorage, Alaska, is the nearest place to Ottawa that can service the Procter Electric Company's products. Their head office is in Philadelphia. I want you to read this letter. Surely it is the strangest that ever came out of United States to Canada. Here is how it goes.

Procter Electric Company, Philadelphia, 40, Pa.

Mr. O. M. Westcott,
R. J. Walsh and Co.,
419 Gladstone Avenue,
Ottawa, Toronto,
Canada.

Dear Mr. Westcott:

We acknowledge and thank you for your order. We are forwarding your request to our Authorized Service Station:

Tom's Radio Service,
Anchorage, Alaska.

who is our representative nearest you. Your request will be acknowledged by our service station with an approximate shipping date if the parts are not immediately available.

Should you in the future require either parts or service on any Procter appliance, we know that you will want to use this same service.

Very truly yours,
J. I. Arnett,
Service Manager,
Procter Electric Co.

SHAME ON MR. ARNETT

Can you imagine anybody being as stupid as Mr. Arnett and his Procter electricians.

This from the City of Brotherly Love, this from the shrine of the Liberty Bell, this from the home of The Saturday Evening Post.

I have sent Mr. Arnett a Canadian National timetable. It shows that if he can find the Pennsylvania Station at 30th Street, he can there board a sleeper which will leave there at 5.22 p. m. every night of the year and on 366 evenings in Leap Year. This train will deposit him in Montreal, Canada, which is 529.2 miles down the track from North Philadelphia.

I have indicated that Chicago, which he might possibly have heard of, is much farther away.

I have also sent him a timetable, showing that Ottawa is, in its turn, 1177 miles from Montreal, which he could reach without changing stations in Montreal.

SENDS ROAD MAPS

I have sent him also a road map of North America, showing how close Ottawa is to Philadelphia by highway. I have no map which shows how far Anchorage, Alaska, is, but I have indicated it at the top of the map.

As to Ottawa being in Toronto, I wonder if Mr. Arnett would mind if I addressed this letter to him at:

Third Street,
Philadelphia, Baltimore,
U. S. A.

He doesn't even realize that Toronto is another city, 250 miles away from Ottawa.

Meanwhile, a perplexed guy in far off Anchorage, Alaska, more than 5,000 miles from here, is trying to figure out how he can service Ottawa.

I would point out to Procter, the bright electrical company, that Anchorage is as far from Ottawa as Budapest or Beograd is from Philadelphia. Again, I suppose it would take as much as five minutes on a busy day to call Ottawa on the telephone from Philadelphia.

Plane Hunters Fined $300 Each For Moose Death

FAIRBANKS.—J. A. Jensen, serviceman, and Gerald Bowlin, pilot, were fined $300 each recently in Anchorage for using an airplane in spotting and aiding in the taking of a bull moose.

The offense took place in the vicinity of Mile 195 of the Alaskan Railroad. Hunters in the area noted the plane's license and informed Fish and Wildlife Service agents who arrested the men on their return to Anchorage.

Jensen admitted firing at a moose from the plane but didn't think he got it. The plane was then landed and

Fairbanks Hard Hit By Recent Cold Wave

Denizens of Fairbanks and local merchants were hard hit by the recent cold wave that taxed the city's steam-generating plant to the limit. Fifty below zero weather, with only 30 feet visibility also caused Pan American operations to come to a temporary halt.

The Fairbanks Cold Storage Co. retail food store and cold storage lockers, after five days without heat, suffered heavy losses in vegetables, eggs and canned goods. Efforts to save the food by using electric heaters and coal oil stoves proved futile.

Utilities officials said the trouble resulted from a combination of the bitter cold, extra heavy power loads and an inferior grade of coal used for making steam.

A discoverer shall be entitled to a claim 1,500 feet in length, and a party of two discoverers two claims, each of 1,250 feet in length.

The boundaries of any claim may be enlarged to the size of a claim allowed by the Act, if the enlargement does not interfere with the rights of other persons or terms of any agreement with the Crown.

An application for a claim may be filed with the Mining Recorder within ten days after being located if within ten miles of the Recorder's Office. One extra day shall be allowed for every additional ten miles or fraction thereof. A claim may be located on Sunday or any public holiday.

Groundhog Day Upcoming To-Morrow

According to ancient tradition, to-morrow, Feb. 2, is Groundhog Day and the occasion that is faithfully followed by the weather prophet.

In fact the prophet in question is none other than Mr. Groundhog himself. For, as the old tradition stands, this is the day when the groundhog emerges from his winter quarters underground to take a look-see at the weather.

If he sees his shadow, he scurries back underground for another six weeks, predicting cold weather ahead. But, if he sees no shadow, he remains out and that is supposed to be a sure sign that mild weather will prevail and that spring won't be far away.

Scores Attend Gala Gathering At Curling Club

Bobbie Burns' Night Celebrated in Traditional Style by Curlers and Their Guests.

One of the largest crowds in recent years attended the Bobbie Burns' celebration at the Dawson Curling Club last Saturday night and from the time the festivities got under way, until the last dance was played, the affair proved an outstanding success and thoroughly enjoyed by all who attended.

Chuck Ravenhill, vice-president of the Club, got the evening's entertainment under way shortly after the curling match between a team of women curlers and the high school lads.

* Members of Miss Faulkner's rink were: Miss Faulkner, skip, Miss Besette, third, Mrs. Kingwell, second and Mrs. Colbourne, lead.

High School: Bob Munroe, skip, Danny Drott, third, Joe Wynen, second, Roy McDiarmid, lead.

As an appropriate introduction to the program, Bill Hutchison, well known Scot of Bear Creek, favoured with a popular reading from Bobbie Burns' poems.

Bill's eloquent rendition of the poem was greatly appreciated.

In an Eightsome Reel, eight young dancers, decked out in kilts and tam-o-shanters, proved their versatility at this intricate Scottish dance. The young dancers had been coached and directed in this reel by Mrs. Alex Hill and the number drew much applause. Those participating were Shirley Hill, Donna Holbrook, Doreen Caly, Peggy Diment. They were partnered by Doug Stratton, Danny Drott, Ron Beale and Ian Bernner.

Piano accompaniment for this lively Scottish dance was played by Miss Mary Mellor.

A sword dance was gracefully executed by Mrs. Hill, with Jim Mellor playing the piano accompaniment.

Balance of the evening was spent with dancing, impromptu curling games, eating, singing and plenty of conviviality so befitting the occasion.

Members of the orchestra, who provided such captivating music for the dancing, were: Mac Munroe, saxophone; Jim Mellor, piano; Carlo Canzian, accordion and Mrs. Lillian Scott, harmonica.

Carlo Canzian is one of the most talented performers on the accordion heard in Dawson in a long time and, along with the other talented musicians, the music was one of the outstanding hits of the entire evening's entertainment.

No Burns' night would be complete without a feast to go with the fun and joviality and it was truly a feast that was served at midnight, including the traditional haggis.

The traditional ceremony of "piping in the haggis," was skillfully carried out (minus the bagpipes) by Pete Huley and the four young girls in kilts who took part in the Scottish dance. Pete, too, was all decked out in kilts and Scottish cap and he made an artful entry with the special dish. It was quite a ceremony and gave a decided Burns Night touch to the occasion.

The luncheon, served buffet style, included, besides the haggis, baked beans, cold meats, salads, bread and butter, pickles, cake and coffee. It was a delectable lunch, arranged and served under the direction of Mrs. Shaw and Mrs. Hill and a group of other Club members.

From start to finish the Burns Night celebration proved the tops in fun and entertainment and the occasion will linger long in the memories of all who attended the gala affair.
