MINISTERIAL STATEMENT

No ministerial statement was given.

SPEAKER'S STATEMENT

Order and decorum during Oral Question Period

The Speaker made the following statement.

"Before proceeding with Question Period, the Chair will make a statement regarding events that occurred yesterday in Question Period.

During Question Period, the Member for Copperbelt South asked the Minister of Justice a series of questions about inmate risk assessment. In responding to the member's final supplementary question, the minister drew the House's attention to comments that he referred to as 'heckling'. The minister then referred to comments about heckling, which he attributed to a staff member of the Official Opposition. At that point, the Member for Takhini-Kopper King rose on a point of order. The gist of the point of order was that the minister had either used abusive or insulting language against, or imputed a false or unavowed motive to, the aforementioned staff member.

The Standing Orders referred to by the Member for Takhini-Kopper King – 19(g) and 19(i) – do not protect persons who are not members of the Assembly. However, Guideline 8 of the Guidelines for Oral Question Period says:

'A question must adhere to the proprieties of the House in that it must not contain inferences, impute motives or cast aspersions upon persons within the House or out of it.' The Chair applies the same rule to responses to questions.

Having reviewed the Blues, it is the Chair's view that there was no point of order. The minister repeated what another person had allegedly written. The minister did not cast aspersions on the person who allegedly made the remark.

The Chair would also remind members that they are responsible for everything they say in the House, even if they are quoting another person. Attributing the words to another person does not immunize a member from being called to order.

In response to the point of order, the minister used the word 'hypocrites' to refer to members of the Official Opposition. That term is out of order, and the minister has been a member of this House long enough to know that and not to use it.

Before ending this statement, the Chair would note that the point of order was preceded by a number of comments that personalized the proceedings. There were also a number of comments by members who had not been recognized to speak that also raised the level of tension in the House.

As the Chair said yesterday in dealing with the point of order, ultimately the level of order and decorum in this House is up to the members. Whether the Chair intervenes on his own, or rules on a point of order, the offending words will have been said before they can be dealt with. The Chair does his best to apply a uniform standard, but it is ultimately the members who will determine what that standard is.

This then brings us to Question Period.”

ORAL QUESTION PERIOD

The House conducted the Oral Question Period from 1:20 p.m. to 1:50 p.m.

The House then proceeded to Orders of the Day.

SPEAKER'S STATEMENT

Unparliamentary language

The Speaker made the following statement.

"Before proceeding with today's Question Period, the Chair will make a statement regarding yesterday's Question Period.

During Question Period yesterday, the Leader of the Official Opposition asked the Premier a series of questions about lobbying legislation. The Chair is not going to repeat in detail what was said yesterday. A point of order was raised by the Government House Leader. The Official Opposition House Leader responded and the Chair ruled on that point of order.

Instead, the Chair will speak more generally about parliamentary language. On page 618 of the 2nd edition of House of Commons Procedure and Practice, we are advised that parliamentary proceedings – and I quote: '... are based on a long-standing tradition of respect for the integrity of all members.'

Furthermore, annotation 487(2) of the 6th edition of Beauchesne's Parliamentary Rules and Forms says – and I quote: 'Words may not be used hypothetically or conditionally, if they are plainly intended to convey a direct imputation. Putting a hypothetical case is not the way to evade what would be in itself disorderly.'

The phrases 'access to government is for sale' and 'ethical lassitude', which the Leader of the Official Opposition used yesterday, are disorderly. Saying that these charges represent perceptions held by others is procedurally irrelevant. The member is responsible for having used those phrases in the House. In other words: you say it, you own it.

As the Chair said in his ruling yesterday, the facts are not at issue. The Chair has, on a number of occasions, said that he is not in a position to determine the facts that underlie questions and responses. What is at issue and what the Chair can rule on is the manner in which the members express themselves, particularly when members speak in ways that question the ethics of other members.

The Chair does not wish to obstruct members in asking questions or in providing responses; however, members must be careful of the words they use to express themselves.

We will now proceed with Question Period."

The House conducted the Oral Question Period from 1:27 p.m. to 2:01 p.m.

SPEAKER'S STATEMENT

Reading unnecessarily from Hansard

The Speaker made the following statement.

“Before proceeding with today’s Question Period, the Chair would like to make a statement regarding a point of order that was raised yesterday by the Official Opposition House Leader during the closing speech of the minister responsible for the Public Service Commission at second reading of Bill No. 87.

In raising the point of order, the Official Opposition House Leader cited Standing Order 19(d), which says, in part: “A member shall be called to order by the Speaker if that member: ... in the opinion of the Speaker, refers at length to debates of the current Session or reads unnecessarily from Hansard or from any other document ...”

The Official Opposition House Leader argued that the minister had violated Standing Order 19(d) by giving the same speech he had given during his opening speech at second reading of Bill No. 87 on April 16.

In responding to the point of order, the minister said he believed that as mover of the motion for second reading, he could provide comments as he saw fit.

The Chair ruled on the point of order yesterday. However, the Chair believes it would be beneficial to clarify a few matters about closing speeches in debate on a bill or motion.

The second edition of House of Commons Procedure and Practice, at page 602, says – and I quote: ‘Any Member who has moved a substantive motion may speak a second time to conclude the debate ... The right of reply allows for the rebuttal of criticisms and arguments directed against a substantive motion, and its effect is to close the debate.’

In other words, the right of reply gives the mover of the motion the opportunity to respond to questions, criticisms, arguments and comments that have arisen after the member’s opening speech during debate on the motion. While it is expected that the mover of the motion might summarize his or her opening remarks, the right of reply is not an opportunity to repeat the member’s opening speech verbatim.

So while the mover of a motion does have some latitude in his or her closing speech, the member must do so within the confines of Standing Orders that refer to, among other things, unnecessarily reading from Hansard or other documents, needless repetition and relevance.

Yesterday was a unique situation in that the closing remarks had only been started when we ran out of time when we were first doing second reading, so the minister was using his time in closing, in my opinion, to reaffirm and re-establish the importance of the bill at that time, having had five weeks in between the opening of second reading and the closing of second reading.

I hope this statement clarifies the situation for members. We will now proceed to Question Period.”

The House conducted the Oral Question Period from 1:18 p.m. to 1:52 p.m.

The House then proceeded to Orders of the Day.
