FONDS DESCRIPTION

JOINT COMMISSION ON INDIAN EDUCATION AND TRAINING FONDS. – 1986-1987.

Physical description

1.1 m of textual records and other material.

Administrative history

The Joint Commission on Indian Education and Training was established in August 1986 by the Yukon Territorial Government and the Council for Yukon Indians. Its formation was a direct result of recommendations made to the government in previous reports on the state of Native education in the territory. The objectives of the Commission were (a) to identify, investigate, analyze, and report on the barriers to educational and training opportunities for Yukon Native people and (b) to provide recommendations for changes in policies, procedures, and practices which would eliminate or reduce these barriers. The original commissioners were Judy Gingell, Linda McDonald, and Bob Sharp. Citing internal difficulties, the entire Commission resigned in December 1986. Three new commissioners were appointed in January 1987: Bengie Clethero, Nelson Ireland, and Mary Jane Joe. Their new staff was comprised of David Roddick (Executive Director), Desiree Jones (Secretary), and Gerry Bruce (Community Liaison Consultant). The Commission was renamed "Kwiya" a Southern Tutchone word meaning "to grow wise".

In order to accomplish its mandate the Commission held public hearings in all thirteen Yukon communities. The Final Report of the Commission consisted of three consultant's reports and an executive summary with four major recommendations.

Scope and Content

The fonds consists of correspondence, transcripts, sound recordings, minutes, etc. that were generated by the Commission. It also includes reports and published material acquired from various sources and used for reference and background information. The records document the Commission's mandate to discover why the contemporary education system did not meet First Nation needs and to provide recommendations on how the system could be altered to accommodate these needs. The fonds is arranged into the following series: Administrative Records; Transcripts; Taped Commission Proceedings; Educational videos; and Published Reference Material.
